Officer Scott Says Mrs. Eaton Was More Excited Than Grief Stricken When Officers Called

PLYMOUTH, Oct. 22.—The close of testimony for the government in the Eaton trial was looked for today. District Attorney Barker planned to rest his case after calling five more witnesses to support the contention of the prosecution that Mrs. Jennie May Eaton caused the death of her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, by poisoning.

State Officer Scott of Braintree, the first witness of the day, described the finding at the Eaton home on March 11, a few days after the admiral's death of the typewritten paper mentioned during the examination of Mrs. Eaton's youngest daughter, Dorothy, last week. This paper, according to Officer Scott, appeared to be Mrs. Eaton's will and bequeathed all the defendant's property to her older daughter, Mrs. June Keyes.

The document was uncompleted, Scott said. He could not remember the date it was written and he was able to give only the substance of the ten typewritten lines.

Attorney William Morse, counsel for Mrs. Eaton, objected to the admission of the testimony on the ground that the authorship was not determined, and that it would be unfair to allow the substance of the paper to be given in what he termed "a second hand way."

Replying for the prosecution, Assistant District Attorney Katzmann said

Police Investigation

The police investigation of Admiral Eaton's death was the subject of most of Scott's testimony. On his first visit to the Eaton home on March 10, Mrs. Eaton told him that she could not see the necessity of an investigation as the doctor had pronounced death due to natural causes.

FIRE AT THE T. & S. MILL

Lively Blaze Broke Out in Cotton Storehouse This Noon

Fire Making Rapid Progress When Dept. Arrived—Little Damage

A lively fire broke out in the cotton storehouse of the Tremont & Suffolk mill in Tremont street this noon, but fortunately the members of the fire department responded in quick time and managed to save the building and its contents.

The fire broke out in cotton bales under the floor of the building and when the blaze was discovered the rear end of the structure was blazing and the fire was making rapid progress. An alarm from box 71 at 12 o'clock summoned a portion of the fire department, who quickly tore up the side of the building. Several streams of water were played on the fire and a number of large bales of cotton were rolled into the street. The fire was checked before any great damage was done, but on account of the material several firemen were left on the scene to keep close watch on the cotton bales, for it was feared the fire might break out at any moment.

LOWELL MUSICIAN IN U.S. ARMY TRAIN HITS CAR

Sergt. Patenaude, U. S. Infantry, Home on a Furlough

He is Stationed in Texas Near Galveston and Will Return in Jan.

SERGT. HENRI PATENAUDE,
U. S. ARMY

Sergt. Henri Patenaude, U. S. Infantry, a Lowell boy, is enjoying a three-months furlough in this city, the guest of his father, Absalon Patenaude of 465 Moody street. The young man has just completed seven years' service in the United States army as a musician, and he has re-enlisted for four more years. His last stopping place was at Texas, Tex., a small town situated on Galveston bay, about 16 miles from Galveston city, and he gives an interesting report of the things in the south, where his regiment was sent to the mobilization camp.

Henri Patenaude was born in this city 27 years ago, and always lived in Lowell, where he became widely known on account of his musical abilities. He was a violinist of rare talent, and was a popular member of the Lowell Musicians' union. The young man played in several local theatres and was a favorite among music lovers.

In 1907, however, Mr. Patenaude decided to join the United States army brass band, and on Sept. 28 of the same year he enlisted with the Coast Artillery. At that time he had considerable knowledge of brass instruments and he was immediately detailed by the war department to Fort Screven, Georgia, where he played the trombone, later shifting to the French horn. He remained at that post for three years and then was transferred to Fort MacKenzie, Wyoming. While in this Kenzie, Wyoming, he created quite a reputation for himself and soon became choirmaster of St. Paul's church, a position he held nearly a year, when his enlistment expired.

The young soldier, who was then corporal, enlisted for three more years, this time shifting over to the infantry, joining the 15th regiment. He remained in the west until last March when his regiment joined the mobilization camp at Texas, Tex., a small city near Galveston and situated on Galveston bay. It was there that Corporal Patenaude was promoted to the rank of sergeant with a salary of $50 per month. He has two more promotions to get before reaching the limit, that of principal and chief musician, which he hopes to reach before many years.

Speaking about the troops in the south, Sergt. Patenaude says there are about 10,000 men occupying camps in a large field, the area of which is about two square miles. He said the troops were rushed there last March, but the exact nature of the soldiers' stay in Texas was not made known. However, everything is in readiness in case of trouble. He said the troops are located about 500 miles from the Mexican line.

Speaking about the climate in the south, Sergt. Patenaude says it could not be better, with the exception of last month, during which there was rain in abundance, there being 26 consecutive days of rain. The rain was so continuous that thousands of dollars worth of cotton crops were destroyed. The cost of living in Texas is not so high as up north, but the eggs are scarce and they are worth 35 cents per dozen, but meats and vegetables are much cheaper. The principal products of Texas are cotton, rice, and sugar cane, while vegetables are also raised in large quantities. The soldiers like the southern life and they greatly enjoy their stay in Texas.

The band of which Sergt. Patenaude is a member is composed of 25 members, and their only duty is to entertain the soldiers by giving a concert every evening. The musicians are off two days a week, Saturday and Sunday, and the other days they have practically nothing to do. However, they are not allowed to do work for civilians, unless there is no competition. This order was brought about on May 11, 1908, when the war department by an act of congress, raised the pay of the musicians nearly 50 per cent.

Sergt. Patenaude brought home a quantity of raw cotton, as taken from the field, as well as several other souvenirs from the south. He will remain in Lowell until Jan. 8, at which

Bad Accident on Grade Crossing in Manchester—Three Hurt

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 22.—Jas. Dowd, a liquor dealer, received injuries from which he is dying, and three other persons were hurt seriously in a collision between a trolley car and a Boston & Maine freight train near the Elliot silk mill in East Manchester last night.

Dowd was hurled from the rear vestibule of the car and struck his head against a pole at the roadside, 15 feet distant.

Mrs. Nellie Walsh, Charles Latham and Eugene Breckard were the others injured, suffering bone fractures, severe abrasions and cuts.

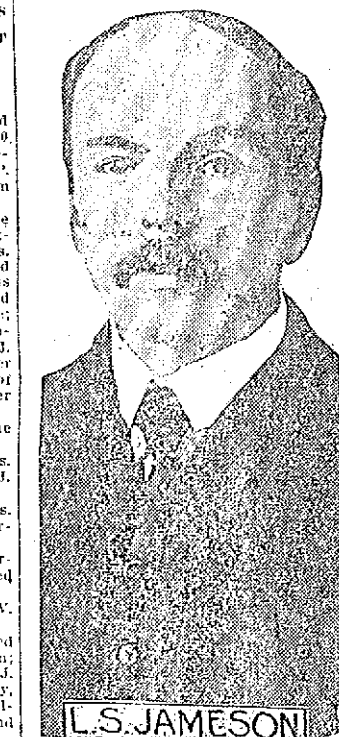

The car, carrying 35 passengers, was crossing a railroad track on Wilson street, at a grade crossing where there is no gate and no signal, when an extra freight train from Portsmouth struck it. The rear platform was demolished, despite the steel construction of the car.

ect. The Chartered company will turn millions of acres of excellent grazing land into vast ranches. The ranches will be conducted on the most modern American lines. The Chartered company has appointed Richard Walth of Texas ranch manager. He is now en route to America. The ranches are said to contemplate taking land for ranches, and some of the chiefs of the most extensive ranching company in Colorado are seeking for South Africa to meet Sir Starr Jameson. The Chartered company will give the Americans all the facilities possible. How far the Chicago beef trust is involved in the development has to be seen. But Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Dakota and Nebraska ranch directors are enthusiastic in the belief in a rich agricultural future for Rhodesia.

That one of his sisters killed herself because of despondency after Spencer had been sentenced to his first term in prison.

OFFICIALS WHO WILL DETERMINE FORM OF GOVERNMENT FOR PANAMA CANAL ZONE

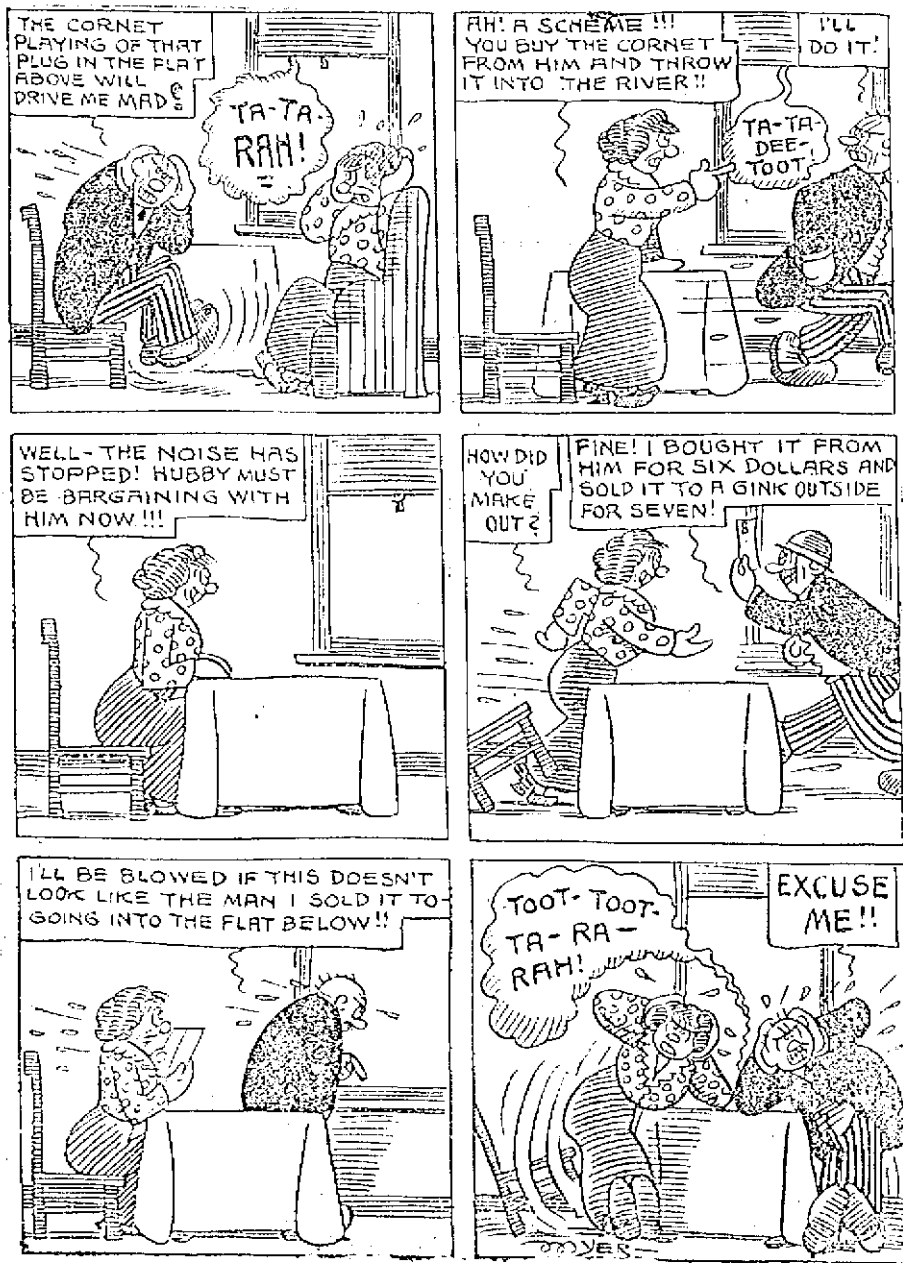

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Officials of the government and operating force of the canal after the waterway is opened will be taken up. Two opposing plans will be considered. Commissioner Metcalf, former editor of Secretary Bryan's Commonwealth, who has been on the isthmus since the latter part of last August, has a plan of organization of the permanent force which differs diametrically from the ideas of Colonel Goethals. Mr. Metcalf favors a commission form of permanent government, a "diffused government," as it was called upon by an official. Colonel Goethals believes a centralized government with responsibility concentrated in one head would be best. The Metcalf suggestions divided responsibility and authority.

cannot be put into effect without legislation by congress, as the Panama canal act of 1912 provided for a one man authority. Secretary of State Bryan is reported as favoring the Metcalf proposition, while Secretary of War Garrison is inclined toward the views of Col. Goethals.

Many Oppose Petition of B. & M. for Authority to Raise Prices

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—Representatives of many N. E. Trade associations appeared yesterday at an adjourned hearing before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty to oppose the petition of the Boston & Maine road for authority to increase its freight rates in certain sections of New England. As in former hearings on the petition members of the public service commissions of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts sat with Commissioner Prouty.

David O. Ives, the rate expert of the Boston chamber of commerce, claimed that the increased rates were excessive, especially to large centers of population in the northern and western sections of New England. He said that what decreases had been made were in sparsely settled districts in the northern part of the section.

A LITTLE NONSENSE

SPANISH BEAUTY CHOSEN QUEEN OF SAN FRANCISCO'S UNIQUE CELEBRATION

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—A Spanish beauty of historic ancestry, Conchita Sepulveda, has been chosen queen of the Portola festival, San Francisco's unique celebration commemorating the discovery of the Pacific ocean by Balboa. The festival, which is in honor of the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery, ends Oct. 25. Senorita Sepulveda is a descendant of some of the oldest of California families, tracing themselves back to the days of heroic Don Gaspar himself. Her father from 1810 to 1832 occupied with honor the offices of county judge, district judge and superior judge of Los Angeles county, eventually resigning to go to Mexico as chief counsel for a well known express company. In the sister republic he became the close friend and confidential adviser of former President Porfirio Diaz. Her mother was a Dona Guerra, one of the famous Santa Barbara families which still owns the beautiful hacienda there, one of the show places of the southern coast.

W. G. Melvin and manned by 750 men from the yards of her builders. On the run from Cape Henry to Nantucket she faced a 50 mile gale and was able, her officers say, to maintain an average speed of over 13 knots with a maximum of 20 knots. The Texas is equipped with electric steering gear.

PROGRESSIVE RALLY

sembly and they seemed as much interested as the men, for they cheered the speakers and took an active part in the applause which was frequent and prolonged. One feature of the evening was an address delivered by a woman, Mrs. Tillinghast, who dwelt upon child labor and mill conditions, as well as political occurrences. She proved to be an eloquent speaker. Of course the main address was delivered by Charles Sumner Bird, candidate for governor, who for over a half an hour entertained his listeners with facts relative to conditions in the commonwealth, and also on the program of the progressive party. In the course of his remarks he said he did not want the governor's chair unless a progressive legislature be also elected.

At the close of Mr. Bird's address three cheers from the audience announced the arrival of Messrs. Bird and Cosgrove, who were immediately escorted to the platform. Mr. Bird was at once introduced and his address was in part as follows:

"I will remember the campaign a year ago when we were considered a joke in politics. You know, they did not give me over 40,000 votes before election, and you know the votes I received, and my associates received. It was not the expression of a personal tribute, it was merely a protest against conditions."

"Today, the so-called big newspapers and the professional politicians are leaving no stone unturned in their effort to show that the people's movement cannot succeed. They realize that the rule of the people means much to the detriment of self-centered interests."

"In this campaign I have refrained from personalities and have tried to limit myself strictly to a discussion of campaign issues. I propose to continue as I began."

"In this state, 20,000 people are employed at your expense. It means something to every family in the state, not only in wages, but in supplies. Lowell's last payment to the state tax was $137,000. The poor man with the small home is a great contributor to this tax, and you have a right to expect business methods from your representatives."

"Our government has not kept pace with the times. We need a different kind of government. We have to accommodate ourselves to conditions. We are smothered in this state by boards and commissions. There is no centralized authority to control these bodies. They do practically as they please, and if anything goes wrong, you can't place the responsibility."

"I would demand an absolute estimate of expenses submitted to the governor each year by competent officials, so that the legislature might know in advance exactly where it stands. I believe that the governor should be elected for four years, subject to recall by the people. I would elect the legislature for two years. There are only three states in this country that elect for one year. Annual elections are a burden. The professional politicians argue that it is not possible to change things. You must remember that you are the owners of the business, you are the employers, it is up to you to say."

"Now, I want to discuss immigration, which my opponent of the republican party says we must restrict. He is a defeated man when he makes such an argument. I believe we are fully protected at the present time from the undesirable people of other lands. We want clean immigrants. We can't get too many of them. The wealth of the country depends on the future influx of people, capable, clean. Illiteracy is not the test. The test of the body, the test of the moral character, that is what we want. Proper distribution is the solution, and with general development we are assured."

"Our state platform of the progressive party favors a minimum wage for men and women. I believe this has absolutely essential if we are to lift the human family to the right standard. You owe it to your own people to insist that this be placed on the law books. They tell us we can't establish a minimum wage, that we must treat people as merchandise. That is absolutely untrue. In Australia, they have adopted a minimum wage law and wages have been increased from 30 to 40 per cent."

"This is something new in American politics. The old parties say it can't be done. Well, we admit we can't with the two old parties in power, but if I judge the temper of the people in Massachusetts correctly, the progressive party is going to have the opportunity. The republican party is hopelessly eliminated. Foss has no chance of being elected governor than I have of being made the czar of Russia. The fight is between Walsh and myself. Walsh is backed by the interests that have been deceiving you. He has 30 or 40 pledge breakers associated with him on his ticket and you can have no genuine progress with such a party."

"I don't want to be governor of this state if I can't have assistance from men representing the people, and I ask you to vote against the stand-pat interests in the legislature."

"This movement is bound to succeed, because it depends on human rights long since denied. It is not the expression of a moment, but arises from human necessity, and I firmly believe that we are going to win this great fight."

"In this campaign I have been emphasizing constantly that the vital needs of Massachusetts were four in number. First, we need a more business-like humane government, because if the methods now in use were applied to a private business it would put that business into bankruptcy. I understand that it is impossible to supply common sense business methods to the organization of government. So it may seem to an old professional politician. It does not seem so to me, and I am sure it does not seem so to you."

"The trouble with our present form of government is that it lacks any head responsible to the people. The governor is not the general manager of the state. He has little power over the multiple commissions, who, in turn, are responsible in practical matters. We should replace all these 50 or 70 commissions by grouping all the functions of the administration under 12 departments. The heads of the departments should be responsible to the governor and the governor to the people. As it is now, the people can hold no one responsible. There is no way to check wastes, and the governor has very little power except the veto power. He cannot even make appointments without consulting the council, a body which has no authority in other state governments, and which ought to be abolished here."

"With the proper organization, we could have a central purchasing department and a budget. Each one would save thousands of dollars for the taxpayers, as well as render better service to the people."

"All these matters of business methods are not far away from the average voter. They concern the pocket and the civic pride of every citizen. The cost of our government has doubled in a few years. This means double taxes. And in the end the man who pays is not the landlord. The man who pays is the tenant—for the rent money always has to bear the burden of increased taxation."

"The second great need of Massachusetts is for industrial peace. It is the menace of our prosperity and law and order and even our morals. It lies in an increasing industrial discontent. The strikes in Lawrence and other places have brought into our commonwealth not only terrible wastes in production, but the more serious damage of hate, malice, criminality, and the doctrines of radical, disorderly, un-American organizations."

"We cannot arrive at industrial peace by an attempt to deprive workers of the right to strike—indeed we cannot make men work by all the laws on the statute books. Compulsory arbitration and compulsory investigation offer no cure for discontent. Remedies must not be founded on the idea of eternal antagonism between employer and employee. They must be founded on co-operation and complete understanding and square dealing between employer and employee. On this basis, if I am elected, I will work for the establishment in Massachusetts of industries or industrial boards where employer and employee, through their representatives, may meet to discuss the needs of the business and the needs of the workers. This is the first and best step toward industrial peace."

"The third need of Massachusetts is for the conservation of human resources. We must pass laws to protect our womanhood and the right of children to their full development. The minimum wage for women and the proper enforcement of child labor laws are measures of social and industrial justice to which the progressive party is pledged. Men, too, have the right to something more than existence. Last year, when I tried to have the legislature pass a bill compelling eight-hour shifts in continuous industries, which now work their men 11 and 12 hours a stand-pat legislature refused to consider it, and yet men are on the stump today claiming that the legislature of Massachusetts is progressive."

"The fourth need of Massachusetts is for development of our natural resources. Nothing affects the cost of living more than this. Denatured from poverty, has reached by her progressive legislation a point where she now exports over $30,000,000 of foodstuffs every year. We need a system of credit for our farmers, a new adjustment of taxation on forest lands, and on the development of our water power. We must turn that land into beef and vegetable foodstuffs, and put into effect a system of state markets, so that the products may reach the consumer without undue charges on either the consumer or producer."

"There is my program. Every proposal in it is possible of final accomplishment. We want the opportunity of starting forward in that direction."

"The speaker was often interrupted by prolonged applause and at the close of his remarks, the entire assembly stood and gave him three cheers."

Mrs. Anna Tillinghast was the next speaker, and she gave a fine description of labor conditions in this state. She said we pass laws to protect forests, wild animals, fish, and we are striving for a higher development of hogs and cattle, while we are not doing a thing for the human family, which is continuously suffering on account of being overworked in mills for starvation wages, with very unsanitary conditions."

Man Wanted for Wife
Murder in Revere

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—Although the police of Revere and Boston have been carefully searching for Walter L. Brooks, who has been indicted for the murder of his wife, Gladys Brooks, at their home in Revere Saturday, Oct. 12, their efforts so far have not brought results.

Mrs. Brooks died from gas poisoning, and the fact that the gas jet was turned off when the body was found in her home at 65 Dekon street, Revere, two days after she had died, caused police investigation with the result that Brooks is wanted to answer a murder charge.

There is some question now as to whether the young woman was Brooks' legal wife. Mrs. Thomas H. Reardon says her daughter, mother of the dead girl, was, however, married, it

Brooks in Providence, about two years ago.

At the Suffolk county court house, the records show that Brooks had no legal right to marry at that time, as he had a wife living, Mrs. Marion L. Valley, Brooks of Boston.

Mrs. Brooks No. 1 was divorced later, charging her husband with cruel and abusive treatment. The Providence records do not show the marriage of Brooks and Gladys Rowland.

The girl gave her residence as Hawthill and said that her folks were living there. Her case was held over until tomorrow so as to give Supt. Welch an opportunity to get in touch with the girl's parents.

Carl Johnson, a Murky looking resident of North Chelmsford, was charged with being a drunken nuisance to his neighbors. Judge Enright after he had gone over the evidence thought that the best place for Johnson would be the state prison and accordingly committed him there.

THE RUSSELL HEIR

Master Finds "Fresno Dan" is Brother - Scores "Dakota Dan"

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—"Fresno Dan," the mysterious, non-communicative personage who came from the west and announced himself as the long-missing son of Daniel Blake Russell, at a time when the claimant, known as "Dakota Dan," was clamoring in the courts for recognition, has been declared to be the true heir by Attorney Gilbert A. A. Pevey, sitting as master for the supreme court.

And in his finding, which will not be formally filed until Tuesday, Master Pevey labels "Dakota Dan" as a deliberate falsifier and as none other than Jim Russell, who left his home in northern New York to rove the country over.

As persistently as he declared himself to be the missing heir, "Dakota Dan" denied that he was Jim Russell, and in open court he passed the lie to the mother, father and other members of the Russell family who swore him to be of their flesh and blood.

Not Like Russell

Master Pevey in his finding declares that the facial and physical characteristics of the Russell family are totally lacking in "Dakota Dan." The latter he terms, "bold, illiterate and immoral."

On the other hand, Master Pevey finds that "Fresno Dan," reflects the Russell family traits in that he is "bashful, refined and of delicate sensibilities."

In referring to the testimony of the small army of witnesses who appeared for "Dakota Dan," the master says the majority were honest in their belief, but were "hypnotized" by the claimant.

But the master declares that two of the witnesses for "Dakota Dan" gave false testimony, one of whom lives in Boston and the other in Melrose, are mentioned by name in the master's report.

Tribute to William C. Russell, the elder son of Daniel Blake Russell, and who now leads the life of a recluse on the Melrose estate, is thus expressed by Master Pevey in his report: "William C. Russell is of sound mind, steady and uninfluenced by anything but the facts." And Master Pevey further states that the declaration by William C. Russell that "Fresno Dan" is his brother influenced him in reaching a decision.

Perjury Charges Hinted

"Dakota Dan's" testimony that his "father," Senator Daniel Blake Russell, had entanglements with women is branded as absolutely unfounded by the master. Nothing, he says, in the life of Senator Russell justified such statements.

District Attorney Higgins of Middlesex county was asked by a reporter yesterday afternoon what his attitude would be in the event of Master Pevey's report declaring "Dakota Dan" or any other person had given perjured testimony.

"If I become convinced that perjury was committed I shall take steps toward the prosecution of the offender," said Mr. Higgins. "But before deciding my course in the matter I shall read carefully the entire evidence of the hearing before Master Pevey."

If there are indications of perjury I shall make a personal investigation. Of course, it is liable that a person may give untruthful testimony without realizing that the statements made are not true. If, after an investigation, I feel that the facts warrant prosecution I shall immediately take such action. I have had no conference with Master Pevey."

EUGENICS A JOKE

Says Dr. George V. N. Dearborn, Prof. of Physiology at Tufts

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—Dr. George V. N. Dearborn, professor of physiology at Tufts Medical school, in the opening lecture at the School of Eugenics on Boylston street last night, declared that eugenic marriages were surely a joke.

"No woman with any sense will marry a man unless she knows whether he is healthy or not. No man will marry a woman unless he knows whether she is healthy or not," he said.

"Eugenic marriages will come. A law for eugenic marriages is interfering too much with the rights of the individual. I am not a reformer and am skeptical of instantaneous reform," he said.

"It will come I am sure, but it will come through a knowledge of the fundamental principles of life."

Dr. Dearborn lectured upon "physiology of sex." In opening he said: "Knowledge is the one forever reliable basis for the improvement of our life. The psychology of life is erroneously complex and integrated, and therefore is little understood. The average individual is ignorant and understands himself as far as sex is concerned."

"Love," he said, "involves both the mind and body, but it is a common thing to confuse love with friendship. Love and children are the most important things in life."

He further went on to say that he did not believe that sex hygiene should be taught in the schools. "It will be a generation at least before this can be done, he said. "Educate the parents first. Dr. Dearborn stated, on the other hand, that some of the problems of sex should be and could be taught children in the schools at the age of 5 and 7 years.

"Three children is an ideal family, biologically and rationally. Large families are a luxury. As long as every couple has two or three children, I cannot see possibly why any government should ask any more than that."

"Our food supply is at present inadequate. It is undeveloped. It is lessening families with perfect sanction for so doing. The birth rate is continually diminishing and this is the only reason—the inadequate food supply."

After character has been developed and the person has reproduced his kind, there is no reason for living," was a statement he made in the course of the lecture. "This is biologically speaking."

"The body is made to die after it has served its purpose. All bodies are machines and all machines wear out. Death appears to be inherent in life. Brutes live hygienically, but they die."

SCHOOL BOARD HELD MEETING

Principals of Evening Schools Appointed but Not Permanently

State Will Not Pay Half Expense of Last Year's Evening School

The members of the school board held a special meeting last night for the purpose of completing arrangements for the evening schools, and also to appoint additional teachers to the Industrial school. In the course of the meeting it was made known that the state board had failed to reimburse the city for one-half the expense of maintaining the girls' department of the evening Industrial school, on account of the poor work done in the year ending last March. The superintendent of schools was authorized to appoint a clerk for the attendance officers, and janitors were elected.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Dr. Lambert, and the first matter taken up was the appointment of janitors, according to their rank on the civil service list. Cornelius F. Cronin was elected at a salary of $2.50 a day; Geo. Baker, janitor at the Mann evening school at a salary of $1.50 per night, and William McKenzie, to the Green school at a salary of $1.50 per night.

Temporary principals for evening schools, to serve until such time as the school committee shall terminate the arrangement, were appointed as follows:

Chas. E. Graves, Greenhalge school; Melville F. Master, Riverside school; Maud E. Barlow, Howard street school; John J. Queenan, Middlesex Village school.

It is understood that these principals are not to be placed on the permanent eligible list, and their salary was fixed at $1 per evening.

New teachers for the Industrial school were appointed as follows:

Mrs. Grace E. Stevens, assistant in dressmaking and cooking, $250. A. H. Beane, machinist for automobile department, $300; Patrick A. Lyons, head of machine department, $300; Charles W. MacDonald, head of electrical department, $1200. Day and evening work. The following appointments were made to the evening Industrial school:

Charles Thibault, bookbinding; John Cheatham, picking and carding; John McGuinness, plumbing; Henry Fortier, ring spinning; Mrs. Harriet Sturtevant, cooking, at $1.50 per evening.

William Webb, head of the machine shop work in the local Industrial school, and who recently was appointed head of the Lawrence Industrial school, tendered his resignation and the same was accepted, and a vote of thanks for efficiency and faithfulness was given.

The question of fixing the salary for Dr. E. J. Kent, who is in charge of the dental clinic, was taken up and on recommendation of the finance committee, it was voted to pay the doctor $500 per year for his services.

Dr. Hagley thought $500 was not sufficient and he made a motion that the salary be fixed at $1000 a year, but he was the only one to vote in favor.

The Middlesex County Teachers' convention will be held Friday, Oct. 30, and the school board voted to grant the teachers permission to attend. Miss Helen R. Riley's name was placed on the emergency list.

A petition from the Scandinavian citizens of this city for the opening of an evening school in the Butler school was read and granted and the superintendent was instructed to assign an interpreter at $1.25 per evening.

At this session it was announced that the attendance officers were on hand with work on account of the issuing of age and school certificates, and in order to give the officers a chance to attend to their regular work, it was voted that the superintendent be instructed to assign a temporary substitute teachers as clerk of the department.

Mr. Thornton said about the certificates were to be issued, and although the officers have been at work for about four weeks, only 2000 papers have thus far been given out.

A surprise was sprung on the board when Mr. Farrington said that he has become aware for the first time that the state has failed to reimburse the school department for one-half the expense of the girls' evening Industrial school, for the year ending last March. He said that he felt that the state and the city was that representative of the state board should hold the local officials, if the work was not up to the standard, that unless some change be made, reimbursement would be refused. He moved that the superintendent be requested to ask them in writing, at what time and to whom, no fee was given. The motion was carried.

It was also voted to discontinue the evening classes at the Worthen street school and transfer the pupils and teachers to the Green school, on account of unsafe conditions at the Worthen street school, for evening work, in case of fire, with crowded rooms on the upper floors.

WALSH RALLY

Candidate Spoke on Railroads at North Adams Last Night

NORTH ADAMS, Oct. 22.—Lieutenant-Governor David I. Walsh, democratic candidate for governor, spoke at rallies in Pittsfield, Adams and this city last night.

He spoke in part:

"The democratic platform declares in no unmistakable language its position in reference to public service corporations, particularly railroads. We stand for the complete separation of the Boston and Maine and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroads from the state, and the absolute divorce of street railways and the competing steamboat lines."

"Prior to 1898 practically all our street railways were built, financed and managed by local capital. There was a rapid and steady growth, and a manifest eagerness to build street railways all over the commonwealth. Merchants and men of limited means in the larger cities and towns were anxious and willing to invest capital to build street railway lines, as much for the purpose of making their communities centres of business activities as for the financial return that might come to them. Lines were extended into the smaller towns and the progress of this development was most gratifying."

"About the year 1898, the building of street railways substantially stopped, particularly the extension of small suburban lines. This was due to the fact that at that time the steam railroads believed that the street railways were competing and interfering with their passenger business, and the steam railroads thereupon set about to get control of the network of independent street railway companies that were flourishing in various parts of the commonwealth."

"As the candidate of the democratic party for the office of governor, I shall insist when elected that such public servants as I have the power to appoint to take charge of the regulation of public service corporations shall centre their attention at all times upon

CITY TO GET CLEAR DEED

From Locks & Canals if West Centralville Land is Purchased for Public Park

At a recent meeting of the municipal council certain members of the council discussed the proposed sale of a tract of land in West Centralville for public park purposes, and the question was asked if the land proposed to be purchased, would, if bought by the city of Lowell, and also if certain lots of this land could be sold by the city to other purchasers. Inasmuch as no one present could give the desired information, Commissioner Cummings took upon himself the task of finding out, and accordingly he wrote the following letter to Hiram F. Mills, engineer for the proprietors of the Locks & Canals:

Lowell, Oct. 15, 1913.

Mr. Hiram F. Mills,
Dear Sir: In the discussion in the municipal council Tuesday the question was asked if the land proposed to be purchased for a public playground in West Centralville by the city of Lowell from your company would if purchased be the property of the city of Lowell with the reservation mentioned in your letter to me.

The reason for the question is that one of the aldermen asked if, after the purchase, certain lots of land facing Lakeview avenue could be sold by the city of Lowell without restriction. That led to the further inquiry of the deed to be given by the Locks and Canals Co. to the city of Lowell in the event of a purchase by the city will contain a reservation that the land in question will revert to the proprietors of the Locks and Canals on Merrimack river if it is not used as a public playground or for park purposes. If you will give your immediate attention and a reply and you will oblige.

Sincerely yours,
Lawrence Cummings, Alderman.
Mr. Mills' reply was as follows:
Lowell, Mass., Oct. 15, 1913.
Alderman Lawrence Cummings,
Commissioner of Public Property,
Lowell, Mass.
Dear Sir: I have received your letter of Oct. 15th. One of the lots sold on Allen avenue is bounded by a proposed street which condition would have to be respected.

The deed proposed would be of our usual form of quit claim deed; and no reservation not mentioned in my letter of Oct. 10, would be expected.

Respectfully yours,
Hiram F. Mills,
Engineer P. L. & C.

U. S. SALOONS

The Anti-Saloon League Gets After Sec. McAdoo—Say it's a Crime

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Uncle Sam as a saloonkeeper has drawn the fire of the Anti-Saloon league and Secretary McAdoo is the target at which the fulminations of the white ribbons are being hurled. The government owns a large block of property just south of the treasury, on which it is proposed to erect homes for the departments of state, justice and possibly one other. On the tract, which is occupied by business buildings, are three saloons. All of the tenants rent by the month from the government.

"Heavens," cried the anti, when they discovered this fact, "this is a crime and a stain on good citizenship." Whereupon they took the matter up with the secretary of the treasury. Mr. McAdoo today wore a furtive look.

HOUSE ROBBED IN BELVIDERE

Home of R. J. Shepard Ransacked and Jewelry Stolen

Break Discovered by Miss Eva Shepard—Police Investigating

The home of Robert J. Shepard on Fort Hill avenue was broken into yesterday afternoon and considerable jewelry stolen. This is the second daylight break which has been made in this vicinity during the past few months and the details coincide in many respects with the break in the house of Robert B. Wood on the same street which occurred this summer. The Wood home is only a few steps from the house of Mr. Shepard.

The break was made through the cellar of the Shepard residence, the cellar door having apparently been battered in with an axe or other heavy instrument. No one in the neighborhood either heard the noise which must have accompanied the break nor saw any strangers in the vicinity.

Miss Eva Shepard was the first one of the family to discover that the house had been entered. She came home about four o'clock in the afternoon and found everything in the house in a ransacked condition. Bureau drawers were pulled out and the contents scattered over the floors and even the closets were searched in an effort to reveal articles of value.

The articles missing included four gold watches, two gold bracelets, a gold locket and chain and a large number of trinkets of lesser value. The police were immediately notified of the break and larceny and took steps at once to try and secure a clew to the daylight robber. There is only one person who is remembered to have been seen in the neighborhood during the afternoon, a young man who seemed to be in search of a Mr. Norcross. Although the police are busy with the affair the evidence which they have to go on is so slight that there seems very little chance of the thief's apprehension.

CAPABILITIES OF INDIAN

DISCUSSED AT CONFERENCE OF FRIENDS OF THE INDIAN AND OTHER DEPENDENT PEOPLE

MOHONK LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Divergent views of the capabilities of the Indian started a debate here today that in one form or another will reach the national congress. It marked the opening of the annual conference of Friends of the Indian and Other Dependent Peoples. There was expressed an urgent demand for taking Indian affairs out of politics and putting them in the care of a non-partisan commission not subject to the frequent change of membership which now, it is said, defeated many of the movements started by this organization and others like it.

The five so-called civilized tribes of Oklahoma were the Indians mainly discussed today. P. J. Hurley, national attorney for the Choctaw nation, denounced efforts to have congress distribute ten million dollars belonging to the Choctaws and Chickasaws and derived from the sale of their lands. The failure to distribute these moneys, he asserted, was due to attorneys hired on the contingent fee basis by persons who hoped to benefit by proving citizenship in the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations if the government should reopen the tribal rolls. Such citizenship was worth from $5000 to $5000, he said.

DEPOSITORS OF "TRADERS"

Advised Not to Sell Accounts to Money Sharks—Receiver Murray Talks to Sun Representative

The recently appointed receiver of the Traders National bank, Mr. Harold G. Murray, came to Lowell yesterday to begin his duties in that capacity at the request of the federal government. Mr. Murray is receiver of the First National bank of Norwich, Conn., and comes here from that city.

He has the reputation of being an expert in banking and a man of exceptional insight in financial matters, and local business men and depositors have expressed pleasure at the knowledge of his appointment as receiver.

All persons having claims against the Traders bank are requested to have their claims in to Mr. Murray within three months. Unless this is done, the claims will be disallowed.

There has been no disturbance about the bank doors, though the authorities prepared themselves for such difficulties. It is believed that the announcement that the depositors will be protected was the means of quieting the people and restoring their confidence. Mr. William F. Hills gave out a brief statement in which he thanked the other banks for their efforts of assistance. He expressed confidence that the depositors will be paid dollar for dollar when the affairs of the bank are straightened out. The work of examining the books is going on at the present time.

It has been said that money sharks will endeavor to buy up the accounts of many of the depositors at this bank, as has been done at various times in other cities. The practice is to give from $50 to $75 on a $100. These money sharks are noted for their insatiable methods of imposing on the poor and needy and it is to be hoped that the depositors of the Traders bank will be paid against their probable attempts to profit unduly by the temporary lack of confidence of those whose accounts are at present tied up.

Receiver Murray Talks

A reporter of The Sun called at the bank this morning and had an interview with the receiver, Mr. Harold G. Murray, who discussed many phases of the involved situation but did not, however, make any formal statement, following in this the wishes of the federal government.

When asked as to the probable length of time before the books are examined and the actual status of the bank's finances known, Mr. Murray said:

"We cannot at this time even state approximately when the examination is to be completed, as there are an enormous number of accounts, and each will have to be checked up individually. It will be a very long process."

What would you say to the depositors, who naturally look to the receiver for an unbiased opinion, as to what they should do and what their prospects are?

"What they will ultimately receive we cannot say at this time, but they should realize that the action of the government in closing the bank is to protect their interests. The affairs of the bank are now being handled for the depositors and they will be protected as far as possible. All the money available will be collected and all will receive equal treatment whether or not the accounts are in the commercial or in the savings departments. The government does not recognize any distinction and there will be equal treatment for all. The depositor with the smallest account will receive proportionately as much as the depositor who has the greatest amount of money involved."

"What must the depositors do to recover their money or any part of it?"

"The usual procedure is for the depositors to bring their pass books to the bank where the receiver will have them verified. As soon as a balance is struck they shall have their books back and with them a form on which they shall make out the amount of their claim against the bank. On depositing this claim they will receive a certificate of their deposit and on that certificate the dividend will be paid. This certificate is in negotiable form and can be bought or sold. I would advise all depositors, however, not to trade or sell their accounts until the final adjustment is made. I am scrupulous people often strive to profit by such occurrences as the present embarrassment of the Traders bank."

Here one of the officials of the bank interposed to say that as there are over 15,000 accounts, he hoped all the depositors would not bring their pass books at one time.

There have been some statements to the effect that deposits were made at the bank on Monday morning a few hours before the doors were closed, but these statements are not correct. No deposits were made and no money was received after Saturday night.

Every succeeding day brings new stories of the disappointed victims of the bank. Thousands who had deposited in the Christmas savings department are lamenting the loss of all they had. Many of them are people to whom a ten dollar bill means more than would a large amount to parties better situated. Many families stunted themselves in the necessities of life in order to deposit a little money in the Christmas savings department. They are now bewailing their misfortune. There are hundreds of such people in various four and five and in the creek district.

ing as a cause, jealousy because of the fact that a certain young man had deserted the defendant to devote his attentions to Miss Scraggs. In this case no evidence was found to convict the defendant and the case was dismissed. Miss Scraggs, however, said that the threatening letters continued to come to her.

The story of the alleged abduction, as given to the police, is as follows: At ten o'clock last night, Mr. Scraggs, of 33 Claire street, phoned to the police station to tell the authorities that Ethel had gone to the postoffice early in the evening, and had not returned.

At 10:45 p. m. last night, Ethel telephoned to her folks in this city, from the railroad station at Waltham, saying that she had been knocked down and kidnapped by two men at the postoffice, and taken in an auto and left on the streets at Waltham. At 1:30 o'clock this morning, the police of Waltham called the local police and said that they were holding one Ethel Scraggs at the station there for safe keeping, and that the girl had claimed to have been kidnapped at the Lowell postoffice.

The girl, in her story, said that she had come to the postoffice about five o'clock yesterday afternoon, although the other accounts seem to indicate that it was later in the evening. She was seized by two men and rushed in to a covered automobile nearby, and taken to a large house somewhere on the road between Lowell and Waltham. There, she stated, she awoke to find herself lying on a couch. She said that she had not been assaulted. One of the men, according to her accounts, said that he was going to Boston, while the other took her in the machine to Waltham, where he left her at the corner of Dale and Bacon streets. The men were young men; she said, wore blue suits, one having a gray overcoat and the other a brown one. Arriving at the Waltham railroad station, she telephoned her folks in this city, and then went to the police station. There she was held for safe keeping.

Miss Scraggs said that she has a gentleman friend living in Waltham, and that some time ago she received a telephone message to the effect that he had been seriously injured, and to go to him at once. She went, but only to find that it was all a hoax. Last night, she telephoned her young man friend and he came to the police station to take her away.

A brother of the girl was interviewed this morning by The Sun man and he said that the above story is true. He stated that the girl's mother had gone to Waltham to bring her home and she would return with the girl this afternoon.

NAVAL ACADEMY

Six Took Examination for Appointment Held at High School

A competitive examination to determine who Congressman John Rogers will designate to take the official examination for appointment to the United States Naval academy at Annapolis Md., was held at the Lowell High school this morning.

This is the first competitive examination ever held in the 5th district to decide who the appointees shall be. Any young man between the age of 16 and 20 years had the opportunity of taking the examination which is in charge of the United States civil service commission. George H. Burgess, supervisor. He is assisted by Mr. A. J. Wilson and both are employees at the local post office. There were six applicants for the position this morning and the four highest will be chosen by Congressman Rogers one as appointee and the other three as alternates.

It is planned by Congressman Rogers to have the four highest in the examination today put through a physical examination in the near future. This will give the applicant an idea of the chance of passing the final examinations and if he does not make a good showing in this preliminary it will not be necessary for him to prepare for the final examination next June.

The United States civil service commission at Washington is very much interested in this scheme of securing the best qualified young men in the district for the appointment and Congressman Rogers has received in the district for the appointment and Congressman Rogers has received requests from several congressmen for literature or facts relative to the way it is being carried out.

This examination has been given much publicity as notices have been placed on public buildings throughout the district and most of the young men's clubs have been notified although only 12 applied for information and 6 appeared this morning. Two of the applicants live in this city while the others come from Chelmsford, Methuen, Stow and Woburn.

Congressman Rogers arrived in this city about 10 o'clock this morning from Washington, his chief business being to look after the interests of the applicants.

STOCKHOLDERS OF NEW HAVEN

Met at New Haven, Ct. Today — Four Hundred Present

Pres. Howard Elliot Called the Session to Order

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 22.—For the first time in the reorganization of most of those present, the annual meeting of the stockholders of the New Haven road was not held in the little 2nd floor in the "yellow" building today. Instead, in anticipation of an outpouring of stockholders, Harmon hall in Elm street was used, where seating accommodations were ample.

Many of those present had copies of the annual report of the company. This report in recent years had dealt entirely with the affairs of the parent or steam company but the 1913 report is greatly amplified. Not only are the accounts of the New Haven company extended in detail but the income accounts and balance sheets of subsidiary and leased lines with more or less descriptive matter are embraced within the covers.

In this connection it is recalled that at the recent special meeting A. Maxcy Hillier of this city offered a resolution to the effect that the directors be asked to make a statement in the annual report of the total receipts and expenses and income account of subsidiary and leased lines. The resolution was ruled out as not being germane to the call for the meeting with the suggestion that it be offered at the annual meeting.

The amplified statement of the company meets everything called for by Mr. Hillier's resolution. The exception as regards subsidiaries it is stated in the report are those properties whose accounts are embraced in others already reported upon.

The attendance was upwards of 400, most of whom, when President Howard Elliot called the session to order, A. Maxcy Hillier of this city offered a resolution to the effect that the directors be asked to make a statement in the annual report of the total receipts and expenses and income account of subsidiary and leased lines with more or less descriptive matter are embraced within the covers.

As soon as Secretary Clark had read the call for the meeting Clarence Venable of New York noted that the minutes of the board of directors and the executive committee of the board relating to the annual statement be presented. Mr. Elliot replied that the call distinctly stated that the annual statement would be under consideration.

Too Much Silence
Mr. Venable then said there had been too much silence on the part of the stockholders and too much concealment on the part of the directors in the past and the time had come when the directors of the corporation, for their own protection and enlightenment of stockholders, should present the annual statement in a form that would be understood by the stockholders.

"I desire to say that all comfort," he said, "for an explanation of the statement so that stockholders will not have to vote blindly on the acts of the board of directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford company. Any person voting under section 3 of the call electing himself from the future disapproving the annual report even if steeped in the vote of fraud. I do not mean to say that there is anything fraudulent in the acts of the directors but I do want a fair discussion of the company's affairs."

At the request of President Elliot Mr. Venable put his motion in writing.

Discuss Annual Statement

In reply to a question by former Governor Morgan Bulkeley, Mr. Elliot said he did not intend to confine the business of the meeting to the exact letter of the call but would permit a discussion of the annual statement. It was not put at the time, however, as Mr. Venable's motion had been seconded from all parts of the hall. Mr. Venable asked for a viva voce vote which Mr. Elliot said he would not order as this was a stockholders' meeting. He said it would take two days to read the details of the company's affairs as asked by Mr. Venable. The officers of the company, he added, wanted a free discussion of the company's affairs and he himself was ready to answer any questions.

illness, as Scott said she told it to him at the time, agreed with the testimony given at the trial. She told the officer that the admiral was a "dope fiend," and that he used both opium and morphine. She said she had pawned her jewels to pay his bills, although she knew he was trying to poison her.

When Mrs. Eaton's mother remonstrated with her for talking too much to the officers, Mrs. Eaton told her she was "rather go to jail than to an asylum with the monkeys hopping around the bars," Scott said.

Mrs. Eaton Exulted

Mrs. Eaton seemed more excited than grief-stricken when the officers were in the house, the officer said, and nearly knocked her husband's body from the stand on which it rested.

Scott said under cross examination that Mrs. Eaton showed no disposition to conceal anything, nor was she able, in a search of the drug stores in the vicinity, or in Boston, Washington, Georgetown, D. C., and Alexandria, Va., to find anyone who had ever sold any poison to Mrs. Eaton.

Mrs. Marshall Bursey of Washington, D. C., was recalled to the stand when Mr. Morse, for the defense, introduced a letter written to Mrs. Eaton by Mrs. Bursey on March 23 last and in this letter Mrs. Bursey expressed her faith in Mrs. Eaton's innocence and added:

"For you always talked of your husband and all you thought of him."

Scott's testimony was corroborated by Deputy Sheriff Condon, who assisted in the investigation of the admiral's death.

Physician Rude

A letter written by Mrs. Eaton to a Rockland physician four years ago was read into the record during the testimony of Dr. Charles Colgate, Jr. In the letter Mrs. Eaton complained that the physician had been rude to her. The letter, in part, follows:

I gave up an elegant home in Brookline and three housemaids' society to bring this poor, deluded man out into the country to

THE NEGRO QUESTION

Commanding Topic at This Afternoon's Session of the Episcopal Church Convention in New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The nine-year old question of negro representation in the house of bishops was the commanding topic of legislation to be dealt with this afternoon at the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church. At present the negro membership is under the direction of white diocesan bishops. A minority of the deputies committee on racial episcopate would place this entire membership under the direction of a single negro bishop and give to this bishop a seat and a vote in the house of bishops.

Sentiment in the house of deputies today to be almost evenly divided on the question.

In the house of bishops, however, there was a strong feeling that the wishes of the southern bishops who would be most directly affected should determine the action of the house. To this end there was afoot a movement to refer the entire matter to the southern bishops and sustain a majority report.

At a joint session of the two houses today the work of the church among American negroes, Indians and inhabitants of West Africa was discussed.

The cryptic handwriting of a southern bishop caused an error in the announcement of the election of a bishop of Spokane last Monday, which was not discovered until today. The announcement made then was that the office had been filled by the selection of the Rev. Dr. William B. Capers of Columbia, Tenn. Examination today of the original draft of the resolution adopted showed that the new bishop of Spokane is the Rev. Dr. W. T. Capers, rector of the church of the Holy Apostles of Philadelphia, a brother of W. B. Capers.

Chicago, Ill., June 20, 1913.—"I had a severe case of eczema on my face. It looked like little red pimples and got so bad that I did not go out without wearing a veil. I could scarcely sleep at night, the itching and burning were almost intolerable. I had been suffering from this for several weeks, and had tried several salves but with practically no results. I did not know what I should try next. After one application of Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment I was able to have a good night's sleep. When Coffee is Doing Harm

A lady writes from the land of cotton the results of a four years' use of the food beverage, Postum:

"Ever since I can remember we had used coffee three times a day. It had a more or less injurious effect upon us all, and I suffered almost death from indigestion and nervousness."

"I know it was coffee, because when I would leave it off for a few days I would feel better. But it was hard to give coffee up, even though I realized how harmful it was to me."

"At last I found a perfectly easy way to make the change. Four years ago I abandoned the coffee habit and began to drink Postum and I also influenced the rest of the family to do the same."

"Even the children are allowed to drink it as freely as they do water. And it has done us all great good. I no longer suffer from indigestion, and my nerves are in admirable tone since I began to use Postum. We never use coffee any more."

"We appreciate Postum as a delightful and healthful beverage, which not only invigorates but supplies the best of nourishment as well." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The White Sox finally beat the Giants yesterday in their game at Florida, Ill. Leverage was in the box for the Chicago team and White was on the firing line for the New Yorkers. The crowd was not up to the expectations of the management. So far the trip of the two teams has been devoid of financial returns.

Gambert Smith did what was predicted in his bout with Tony Ross last night at the Boston club and sent his opponent to the mat for the count in the tenth round of their scheduled twelve session contest. Ross had the better of the affair up to the sixth round but Smith's right hand wallop proved too much for the Newcastonian. The Californian should have knocked out his man in the eighth round but could not put over the punch.

The Dartmouth-Princeton game next Saturday will be the classic gridiron battle of the week. Both teams are confident of pulling off a win. Dartmouth will be without the services of Nat Ambrose who is laid up with a pulled tendon resolved in the Williams game. Over a thousand students will leave Hanover by special train next Friday to take in the game.

The news that Captain Storer of Harvard may be shifted from tackle to one of the wings has caused a great stir among those on the inside of Cambridge athletics. Storer was originally a center and if he is pushed out to an end position it will be a shift that has never had a precedent on a big college eleven.

Knockout Brown will again jump into the limelight next week when he faces Matty Baldwin in Boston. Many thought that the tow headed fighter was practically done with the ring game but he may spring a surprise on the fans in his go with Baldwin.

Tris Speaker joins the White Sox team today. It is expected that all the stars will be on hand before the two clubs leave this country for their world's tour. When the ball players arrived this morning snow covered the ground and today's game may be postponed.

Jack Barry, the Athletics' shortstop, has arrived at his home in Worcester and preparations are now afoot to give him a large reception and banquet. Barry was formerly a student of Holy Cross college, which is located in Worcester, and all the college athletes are turning up things for a royal welcome to the great infielder.

Miller, the quarterback of the Pennsylvania State team, which plays Harvard Saturday at the Stadium, will be watched with great interest. Miller is said to be one of the greatest generals that has ever been turned out despite his size.

The Brooklyn baseball team left for Cuba today. They will stop at Charlotte, N. C., and play two games with a team picked up by Joe Jackson, the Cleveland outfielder. The club is managed by Jake Daubert and will play a dozen games on the island and will return about Christmas time.

Sparackling, the old All-America quarterback, has been sent for in a hurry by the Brown football authorities in a desperate effort to bolster up their team for the remaining games. Sparackling can tell them a lot about the game if they will only profit by it. Brown has the weakest team this year that she has placed on the gridiron for ten seasons.

KEITH'S THEATRE

The Kitamura troupe of Japanese acrobats and balancers, at the B. F. Keith theatre, this week, have a marvellously beautiful setting for their act. It consists entirely of tapestries and hangings which were made by the deft handiwork of Japan. The cost of the hangings was over $6000. The work of the ten little brown men is splendid. They excite much favorable comment. Albert Von Tilzer, the composer of popular songs, and Miss Dorothy Reid, have a classy little act in which the latest songs of Mr. Von Tilzer are sung. John T. and Grace Hilliard in "Hello, Sally" have a droll offering, and Halley & Noble in "The Lady and the Fan" are getting laughs at every performance. They are certainly distinctive in their methods. Other good things of the bill are furnished by the famous Lido & Payne, the bump-the-bump boys, Frank Palmer, comedy cartoonist; Hamilton and Barnes, and the Pathé weekly films. Good seats are obtainable at the box office for all performances. Phone 28.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"The last word in melodrama, 'The Ninety and Nine', is being capably presented by the players at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. It is a bill which gives the different members of the company a useful opportunity for display of their recognized skill and the staging of the piece, particularly the great engine scene, is one which has aroused widespread interest. For the week commencing Monday, Oct. 27, the management announces one of the biggest productions ever staged by any stock company in Lowell. It is a dramatization from the book of Genesis, 'Joseph and His Brothers', and has been made into splendid dramatic form by Miss Marie Doran. The play will be produced in an elaborate manner, with a cast of 50 people, and special scenery and careful attention to detail. It will be given afternoon and evening commencing with Monday matinee, the coming week, and will no doubt be of lasting value to every one as well as an event to all admirers of fine, educational drama. DIAMOND NOTES.

Not a no-hit game was pitched in the major leagues in the 1913 playing season although there were nine contests in which the twirlers came within an ace of accomplishing the feat. Fromme and Suggs of the Cincinnati Reds, Pierce of the Chicago Cubs and Tyler of Boston were the National leaguers to turn this trick. In the American league Hamilton of St. Louis won two games on one-hit margins, Mitchell of the Naps and Russell of the White Sox also winning by the same edge. The ninth one-hit contest went to Washington with Cushman, Engel and Bentley on the hill.

One-hit games of the year in the big leagues follow:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

May 4: Fromme, Cincinnati, lost to Pittsburgh.
June 22: Pierce, Chicago, beat St. Louis (five innings).
Aug. 20: Suggs, Cincinnati, beat Boston.
Sept. 3: Tyler, Boston, beat New York.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

May 21: Hamilton, St. Louis, beat New York.
July 6: Mitchell, Cleveland, beat Chicago.
July 14: Russell, Chicago, beat Boston.
July 15: Hamilton, St. Louis, beat New York.
September 6: Cushman-Engel-Bentley, Washington, beat New York.

The sudden desire for young blood which struck the major leagues about five years ago drove from the big circuit a lot of men who should be in the majors yet.

When Connie Mack produced a pennant winner by raising senior college all the others followed his example in so far as securing youngsters is concerned. Mighty few succeeded in getting pennants with kids.

Old Tom Jones was relegated to the minors by Hack Jennings and Hughes has not found a man to take his place. In 46 games with Milwaukee this past season Jones hit for .345 and stole 12 bases, which is pretty fair for an old man.

Coryn Morgan, passed up by Connie Mack, was the leading pitcher in the American association the past season.

Stories of trouble to be expected from the baseball players' fraternity will make interesting reading during the off season, but it is hardly likely that anything serious will develop. The unsigned players of both leagues have agreed not to sign until their demands or rather suggestions have been given a hearing, but there is no doubt that the magnates will listen to the players and that any reasonable suggestions they make will be adopted. The only hitch is likely to come over the question of who shall speak for the players, as the magnates profess to regard "Dave" Fultz as a sort of walking delegate. They say that they will listen to the players, or a committee of the players, but do not care to recognize Fultz.

Clara Griffith may not have won the American league pennant for the Washington stockholders, but to say that they are satisfied with his work is putting it mildly. When Griffith took hold of the Washington team he got what was considered the joke of the American league. It was a case of "Washington, first in war, first in peace, but last in the American league." In the short time he has been directing the destinies of the Senators he has worked wonders. Last season he beat out the Athletics and finished second to the Red Sox. This year he again finished second and has a fine chance of repeating next season. The Washington club, as the result of Griffith's management, has been able to pay off all its indebtedness and at the same time declare a 20 per cent. dividend.

Manager Fred Clark of the Pittsburgh Pirates harks the American league a fine compliment. Speaking of Young Greig, the Cleveland twirler, whom the Pirates faced in a recent series, Clarke says: "The greatest pitcher we have ever faced—bar none."

Are baseball players improvident? Some followers of the game would answer in the affirmative and some in the negative and both could point to plenty of instances to back up their assertions. But if what the Athletics say as to what they plan to do with their share of the world's series receipts is any indication, members of the Philadelphia club are thrifty to the highest degree. Most of them say they intend to put the money into real estate, while Ira Thomas says that he proposes to build two more houses to add to the 24 that he now owns.—Lawrence Sun.

graduate students in a body. The tower was presented to the university by the Cleveland Monument association.

The exercises were held in the quadrangle formed by the walls of the graduate college, a quarter of a mile southwest of the main campus. President Hibben of Princeton presided and about him were former-President William H. Taft, who delivered the memorial address on Grover Cleveland, representatives of practically all the universities and colleges in the United States and Canada, hundreds of alumni and delegates from French, German and English universities.

Former President Taft's estimate of Grover Cleveland as expressed in his oration was as follows:

"Taft's Address

"Mr. Cleveland was not a great lawyer, he was not a great economist, he was not a great orator, but he was a great president and a great man; and he was these because of the strong mind, clear intelligence and wide knowledge of affairs. He had the character, honesty, courage and sense of public duty which enabled him to meet great and critical issues without regard to personal consequences.

"When he left the White House the last time it would seem that the bitterness of the enmity and open attack upon him by his former party was a humiliation hard to bear. But as years wore on in his dignified retirement, in the great benefit he wrought for this great university and in the wide influence for good he exercised in the country the whole public began to perceive with clearness the exceptional qualities of the man which had shown forth in crises during his presidency."

The graduate college buildings include the Pyne tower which forms the entrance to the common portions of the college; the great hall used for dining purposes; breakfast rooms; common rooms; the quarters of the masters of the college and the resident buildings of the students.

The Cleveland tower stands in the southeast corner of the quadrangle and is Gothic in style as are all the other buildings. The base of the tower is simple and without ornament, but it takes on a greater richness of treatment towards the top, which is an elaborate scheme of lace-like pinnacles clustered upon in stone. In the lower story of the tower is a great memorial chamber and opposite its entrance is a niche for a seated bronze statue of Grover Cleveland. Above the niche is Mr. Cleveland's famous dictum: "Public office is a public trust."

Prosecution Rests in the Eaton Case

WIDOW NEARLY KNOCKED EATON'S BODY OFF STAND

Officer Scott Says Mrs. Eaton Was More Excited Than Grief Stricken When Officers Called

PLYMOUTH, Oct. 22.—The prosecution rested late today in the case of Mrs. Jennie M. Eaton, who is on trial here for the murder of her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, by poison.

The prosecution had consumed five days in presenting the testimony in support of its case.

OFFICER SCOTT TESTIFIES
PLYMOUTH, Oct. 22.—The close of testimony for the government in the Eaton trial was looked for today. District Attorney Barker planned to rest his case after calling five more witnesses to support the contention of the prosecution that Mrs. Jennie May Eaton caused the death of her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, by poisoning.

State Officer Scott of Braintree, the first witness of the day, described the finding at the Eaton home on March 11, a few days after the admiral's death of the typewritten paper mentioned during the examination of Mrs. Eaton's youngest daughter, Dorothy, last week. This paper, according to Officer Scott, appeared to be Mrs. Eaton's will and bequeathed all the defendant's property to her older daughter, Mrs. June Keyes.

The document was uncompleted, Scott said. He could not remember the date it was written and he was able to give only the substance of the ten typewritten lines.

Attorney William Morse, counsel for Mrs. Eaton, objected to the admission of the testimony on the ground that the authorship was not determined, and that it would be unfair to allow the substance of the paper to be given in what he termed "a second hand way."

Replying for the prosecution, Assistant District Attorney Katzmann said:

that during Dorothy's testimony it was brought out that only two persons in the Eaton family, Mrs. Eaton and Dorothy, could operate a typewriter and Dorothy said that she had not written the paper.

"It is fair for the jury to infer who was the author," said Mr. Katzmann. Judge Aiken allowed Scott's testimony about the paper, but refused to allow the paper to be called a will.

Inspector John Ogden of the public service commission, Fred Crowley of the local Street Railway men's union, General Supt. Lees and Supt. Farrington of the Bay State Street railway, and Wallace Parkin, agent at the Boston and Maine depot visited the locations of the different railroad crossings in this city today for the purpose of ascertaining if it is necessary for conductors to flag crossings as frequently as is done at the present time.

A hearing was held in Boston last week before the public service commissioners at which the flagging of "blind" crossings was abolished. There are several crossings in this city that are used by the railroad but once a week and according to present rules the conductor must leave his car at each crossing. It is said that the conductor on High street-Highland line who works nine hours a day, leaves his car eight times for the purpose of flagging crossings and 23 times to throw signals, making 100 jumps on and off of his car during a day's work. The railway men do not believe this is necessary at all times and they hope that in the future a part of it will be abolished.

The party today visited the majority of the crossings in and around the city and the inspector inquired as to the number of times a day trains were scheduled to pass over them and as to the time schedule of the electric cars. Several of the tracks that cross the streets are used only during mill hours and it is believed that the street railway men will not be asked to flag these at all times. One mill agent was interviewed and he stated that he did not believe it was necessary to do as much flagging as is done at the present time.

Inspector Ogden will report to the members of the public service commission and they will notify the local men if any action is taken.

Police Investigation
The police investigation of Admiral Eaton's death was the subject of most of Scott's testimony. On his first visit to the Eaton home on March 10, Mrs. Eaton told him that she could not see the necessity of an investigation as the doctors had pronounced death due to natural causes.

The paving job on Gorham street is being rushed along, and it will be but a short time when this thoroughfare has taken its habitual course of traffic. There are two gangs of city employees at work on this street, one from the sewer department and another from the street department. The street is now paved as far as Madison street and the gutters are closely following, while the sewer work, it is expected, will be completed next Tuesday.

People of that district are complaining that the street is being closed too often of late, and that is one of the main reasons why the work there is pushed ahead as fast as the men can do it, for the closing of one side of the street makes it bad for vehicle drivers as well as electric cars.

FIRE AT THE T. & S. MILL

Lively Blaze Broke Out in Cotton Storehouse This Noon

Fire Making Rapid Progress When Dept. Arrived—Little Damage

A lively fire broke out in the cotton storehouse of the Tremont & Suffolk mill in Tremont street this noon, but fortunately the members of the fire department responded in quick time and managed to save the building and its contents.

The fire broke out in cotton bales under the floor of the building and when the blaze was discovered the rear end of the structure was blazing and the fire was making rapid progress. An alarm from box 77 at 12:10 o'clock summoned a portion of the fire department, who quickly tore up the side of the building. Several streams of water were played on the fire and a number of large bales of cotton were rolled into the street. The fire was checked before any great damage was done, but on account of the material, several bales were left on the scene to keep close watch on the cotton bales for it was feared the fire might break out at any moment.

LOWELL GIRL FORCIBLY ABDUCTED BY TWO MEN

Miss Scraggs Says She Was Knocked Down at Post Office and Taken in Auto to Waltham

According to the story of Ethel Scraggs of 33 Claire street, this city, she was last night the victim of one of the most daring and sensational abductions that has been perpetrated in some time. Miss Scraggs' claims to have been knocked down in front of the postoffice last evening, by two men, taken in a closed automobile to a house somewhere on the road between here and Waltham, where she awoke some time afterward to find herself lying on a couch, and finally taken in the same machine by one of them to Waltham, where she was left at the corner of Dale and Bacon streets. This is the most recent of a series of strange adventures which Ethel Scraggs has experienced during the past few years. Some months ago she was the complainant in a police court case in which she charged another girl with continually writing threatening and otherwise unpleasant letters to her through the mail, alleging that during Dorothy's testimony it was brought out that only two persons in the Eaton family, Mrs. Eaton and Dorothy, could operate a typewriter and Dorothy said that she had not written the paper.

The latter presided and spoke briefly at the various rallies and Mr. Corcoran spoke for a short time in each town visited, and besides advocating his own election urged the people to re-elect Senator Henry Draper for the second term. Night rallies in this city were postponed on account of the unavoidable absence of Senator Fisher, who was scheduled to be a member of the party. The towns visited yesterday included Ayer, Shirley, Groton, Fitchburg, Tyngsboro and Dracut. Mr. Corcoran spoke later at Arlington and Arlington Heights. BURNED AUTO FOR INSURANCE

Is Charge Against Man in Police Court Today

Brought to Lowell from Boston by the State Police

Judge Enright convened police court this afternoon at two o'clock for the second time today but the afternoon session was of short duration. Only one case came up and this was continued until next Saturday.

Peter Rice is charged by the police with setting fire to his automobile for fraudulent purposes. He was arrested yesterday in Boston by Officer Sherlock of the state police and brought to Lowell for trial.

The defendant is now a resident of South Boston. It is an old case that he is charged with, the date of his alleged fraudulent burning being February, 1911. At that time he was living in Lowell and owned a large Packard touring car. On the river road between here and Lawrence his machine was burned while the defendant was out on the road with it and the case has grown out of the suspicious circumstances surrounding the affair. Although the fact is not mentioned it is supposed that the insurance company which carried the risk on the burned car, is the complainant in the case.

A daughter was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Vallerand of White street.

The hall was inadequate to accommodate the gathering which flocked to the building in the early evening, and many who could not get seats returned to their homes disappointed. At the superior civil court session the trial of the accident suit of Strout v. Morse at al. was resumed, the defense having begun its evidence. This case arose out of the alleged injuries received by the plaintiff, Mrs. Nellie E. Strout in falling down a flight of stairs in the flower store of the defendant, the accident, being claimed by the plaintiff to have been due to the carelessness of the defendant.

ropy-turvy, but because of the absence of the family, the police have as yet no knowledge of the extent of the loss.

The Norcross family is away at present and the house is temporarily unoccupied. Thus it was that the burglar escaped detection.

It is thought that the crime was committed yesterday afternoon about the time of the breaking into the Sheppard home, or shortly afterward.

There are many strange circumstances connected with these breaks. The cracksmen are believed to be a young man about 30 years, very tall, with deep-set, dark eyes, and about 5 feet, 2 or 3 inches in height. He has the appearance of being addicted to "dope." A young man of this description has been attracting considerable attention in that section of late. He has been hunted, and chased by residents of Belvidere, who are gradually becoming awake to the fact that he is a most suspicious character and that the burglaries may be traced back to him in the event of his apprehension. Thus far he has escaped the arm of the law.

Yesterday afternoon a young man of this description, wearing the residence in Sherman street, Bell, refused to respond, he knocked loudly and was somewhat taken aback when his knock was answered by the lady of the house. He immediately asked, "however if he could interest her in the 'Loria' magazine," but did not offer to show her any credentials or sample copies of the publications.

ROCKLAND, Me., Oct. 23.—The battleship Texas, the largest of the American sea fighters dropped anchor in Rockland harbor today. She is expected to begin her builders' acceptance trials over the government measurement course tomorrow. The standard Atlantic run will be first in order.

Sometime between 2 and 4 o'clock yesterday the same young man called at the door of a house next to that of Mr. Robert W. This is a curious fact considering that the residence of Mr. Norcross was entered not long afterward.

The man who discovered the Norcross' leak, is employed by Mr. Norcross, Jr., and each morning goes to the Norcross home after the mail. On his visit this morning, he found the evidences of the robbery. The police inspectors visited the house this morning and reported that from the interior sembly and they seemed as much interested as the men, for they cheered the speakers and took an active part in the applause which was frequent and prolonged. One feature of the evening was an address delivered by a woman, Mrs. Tillingshast, who dwelt upon child labor and mill conditions, as well as political occurrences. She proved to be an eloquent speaker. Of course the main address was delivered by Charles Sumner Bird, candidate for governor, who for over a half an hour entertained his listeners with facts relative to conditions in the commonwealth, and also on the program of the progressive party. In the course of his remarks he said he did not want the governor's chair unless a progressive legislature be also elected.

Daniel Cosgrove, of this city, candidate for lieutenant governor, delivered a rousing speech and "Honest Dan" was given one of the warmest receptions ever given a candidate. He was cheered and cheered and often in the course of his remarks he was interrupted by loud applause. The evocation aroused his enthusiasm to such a pitch, that he closed by saying: "The next lieutenant governor would be Daniel Cosgrove.

The other speakers were Dr. C. B. Livingston, candidate for senator in the eighth Middlesex district and C. H. McIntire, candidate for county commissioner, while among those seated on the platform were Chairman Chas. H. Hobson, Cecil P. Dodge, candidate for representative in the 14th Middlesex district; Aba Goldman, Pierre A. Brousseau, James Stuart Murphy, William N. Osgood, and others.

Long before the time set for the meeting the hall was packed to the doors, many standing in the aisles, the gallery showed a large number of women.

The meeting was called to order at 8.15 o'clock by Chairman Charles H. Hobson who explained the purpose of the gathering. Mr. Hobson also explained the program of the progressive party and urged the voters of Lowell to join in the movement for better conditions, and he called attention to the increasing necessity for a concerted movement in which women shall join to bring about the results desired. He introduced as the first speaker Dr. C. B. Livingston, candidate for senator in the eighth district. This gentleman spoke at length on the necessity of having a progressive legislature next year.

The doctor's remarks were well received and they were followed by a brief address by Charles H. McIntire, Esq., candidate for county commissioner, whose talk was principally devoted to disclaiming connection with the so-called county "ring." He told his listeners he has never been in politics before this present campaign, and that he said, he believed will greatly help him, for the citizens of this state are tired of professional politicians.

Candidate Bird's Address

At the close of Mr. McIntire's address three cheers from the audience announced the arrival of Messrs. Bird and Cosgrove, who were immediately escorted to the platform. Mr. Bird was at once introduced and his address was in part as follows:

"You all remember the campaign a year ago when we were considered a joke in politics. You know, they did not give me over 40,000 votes before election, and you know the votes I received, and my associates received. It was not the expression of a personal tribute, it was merely a protest against conditions."

"Today, the so-called big newspapers and the professional politicians are leaving no stone unturned in their effort to show that the people's movement cannot succeed. They realize that the rule of the people means much to the detriment of self-centered interests."

In this campaign I have refrained from personalities and have tried to limit myself strictly to a discussion of campaign issues. I propose to continue as I began.

"In this state, 20,000 people are employed at your expense. It means something to every family in the state, this great expenditure by the state, not only in wages, but in supplies. Lowell's last payment to the state was $123,000. The poor man with the small home is a great contributor to this tax, and you have a right to expect business methods from your representatives."

"Our government has not kept pace with the times. We need a different kind of government. We have to accommodate ourselves to conditions. We are smothered in this state by boards and commissions. There is no centralized authority to control these bodies. They do practically as they please, and if anything goes wrong, I can't place the responsibility."

"I would demand an absolute estimate of expenses submitted to the governor each year by competent officials, so that the legislature might know in advance exactly where it stands. I believe that the governor should be elected for four years, subject to recall by the people. I would elect the legislature for two years. There are only three states in this country that elect for one year. Annual elections are a burden. The professional politicians argue that it is not possible to change things. You must remember that you are the owners of the business, you are the employers, it is up to you to say."

"Now, I want to discuss immigration, which any citizen of the republic can be a defeated man when he makes such an argument. I believe we are fully protected at the present time from the undesirable people of other lands. We want clean immigrants. We can't get too many of them. The wealth of the country depends on the future influx of people, capable, clean, efficient, and the test of the moral character, that is what we want. Proper distribution is the solution, and with that in effect, America's prosperity and general development are assured."

"Our state platform of the progressive party favors a minimum wage for men and women. I believe this law absolutely essential if we are to lift the human family to the right standard. You owe it to your own people to insist that this be placed on the law books. They tell us we can't establish a minimum wage, that we must treat people as merchandise. That is absolutely untrue. In Australia, they have adopted a minimum wage law and wages have been increased from 30 to 40 per cent."

"This is something new in American politics. The old parties say it can't be done. Well, we can't win with the two old parties in power, but if I judge the temper of the people in Massachusetts correctly, the progressive party is going to have the opportunity."

"The republican party is hopelessly eliminated. Foss has no more chance of being elected governor than I have of being made the czar of Russia. The fight is between Walsh and myself. Walsh is backed by the interests that have been deceiving you. He has 30 or 40 pledge breakers associated with him on his ticket and you can have no genuine progress with such a party."

"I don't want to be governor of this state if I can't have assistance from men representing the people, and I ask you to vote against the stand-pat interests in the legislature."

"This movement is bound to succeed, because it depends on human rights long since denied. It is not the expression of a moment, but arises from human necessity, and I firmly believe that we are going to win this great fight."

"In this campaign I have been emphasizing constantly that the vital needs of Massachusetts were four in number. First, we need a more business-like humane government, because if the methods of the present were applied to a private business it would bankrupt that business into bankruptcy. I understand that one of my opponents has complained that it is impossible to apply common sense business methods to the government. So the organization of the progressive party may seem to an old professional politician. It does not seem so to me, and I am sure it does not seem so to you."

"The trouble with our present form of government is that it lacks the human responsibility to the people. The governor is not the general manager—he has little power over the municipal commissions, who, in turn, are responsible in practice to nobody. We should replace all these 60 or 70 commissions by grouping all the functions of the administration under 12 departments. The heads of the departments should be responsible to the governor and the governor to the people. As it is now, the people can hold no one responsible. There is no way to check wastes, and the governor has very little power except the veto power. He cannot even make appointments without consulting the council—a body which has been abolished in other state governments, and which ought to be abolished here."

"With the proper organization, we could have a central purchasing department and a budget. Each one would save thousands of dollars for the taxpayers, as well as render better service to the people."

"All these matters of business methods are not far away from the average voter. They concern the pocket and the civic pride of every voter. The cost of our government has doubled in a few years. This means double taxes. And in the end the man who pays is not the landlord. The man who pays is the tenant—for the rent money always has to bear the burden of increased taxation."

"The second great need of Massachusetts is for industrial peace. It is not necessary for me to tell you of the menace to our prosperity and law and order and even our morals, which lies in an increasing industrial discontent. The strikes in Lawrence and other places have brought into our commonwealth not only terrible wastes in production, but the more serious damage of hate, malice, criminality, and the doctrines of radical, disorderly, un-American organizations.

"We cannot arrive at industrial peace by an attempt to deprive workers of the right to strike—indeed we cannot make men work by all the laws on the statute books. Compulsory arbitration and compulsory investigation offer no cure for discontent. Remedies must not be founded on the idea of eternal antagonism between employer and employee. They must be founded on co-operation and complete understanding and square dealing between employer and employee. On this basis, if I am elected, I will work for the establishment in Massachusetts industries or industrial board where employer and employee, through their representatives, may meet to discuss the needs of the business and the needs of the workers. This is the first and best step toward industrial peace."

"The third need of Massachusetts is for the conservation of human resources. We must pass laws to protect our womanhood and the right of children to their full development. The minimum wage for women and the proper enforcement of child labor laws are measures of social and industrial justice to which the progressive party is pledged. Men, too, have the right to something more than existence. Last year, when I tried to have the legislature pass a bill compelling eight-hour shifts in continuous industries, which now work their men 11 and 13 hours a stand-pat legislature refused to consider it, and yet men are on the stump today claiming that the legislature of Massachusetts is progressive."

"The fourth need of Massachusetts is for development of our natural resources. Nothing affects the cost of living more than this. Denmark, from poverty, has reached by her proper legislation a point where she now exports over $6,000,000 of foodstuffs every year. We need a system of credit for our farmers, a new adjustment of taxation on forest lands and on farm improvements. We must develop the land which lies idle in this state. We must turn that land into trees and vegetable foodstuffs, and put into effect a system of state markets, so that the products may reach the consumer without undue charges on either the consumer or producer."

"There is my program. Every proposal in it is possible of final accomplishment. We want the opportunity of starting forward in that direction." The speaker was often interrupted by prolonged applause and at the close of his remarks, the entire assembly stood and gave him three cheers.

Mrs. Tillingshast

Mrs. Anna Tillingshast was the next speaker, and she gave a fine description of labor conditions in this state. She said we pass laws to protect forests, wild animals, fish, and we are striving for a higher development of hogs and cattle, while we are not doing a thing for the human family, which is continuously suffering on account of being overworked in mills for starvation wages, with very unsanitary conditions.

"We struck the shackles off the black man," continued the speaker, "but today we have a condition of white slavery that is just as objectionable. Today there are 2,000,000 child laborers in our country that are denied the sacred rights of childhood, and that is one reason why the progressive party was born."

The speaker closed by urging the necessity of concerted action, and she asked all citizens of this commonwealth, regardless of party to join in the movement for human betterment. Her remarks were warmly greeted.

Daniel Cosgrove

"Honest Dan" Cosgrove was the last speaker of the evening and when Chairman Hobson mentioned his name the entire audience rose up as one unit.

MRS. PANKHURST ADMITTED

Mrs. Pankhurst, the leader of the English militants, has attracted so much attention, of a type unusual for ladies of good breeding and culture, that her appearance here is regarded as somewhat of an event but it is doubtful if very many cared whether she were deported or admitted. Were she coming here to preach the lawless and anarchistic doctrines that have wrought such havoc in England and incidentally injured the cause of woman suffrage there, the case would be different. Her object is to collect money for the militant movement in England, and there is nothing in her mission which presages annoyance to our government or hostility to our institutions. Like many other famous visitors to our shores she may be expected to make the most of her record for advertising purposes, but she has no designs on the capital at Washington or the status of liberty. She is far too clever to jeopardize her success by antagonizing the American public, and she must know that she will be far more effective here in the role of a martyr than in that of an amazon.

It is to be expected that many sentimental women or groups of women will make a great fuss over this "celebrated" English lady, but the suffragettes of America on the whole are not liable to give her mission official sanction. Mrs. Pankhurst is a variety of freak of whose sanity there are serious doubts and her espousing of the cause of woman suffrage is the safety valve for the blowing off of mental hysteria which with the suffragettes seems to be contagious. She has always shouted for equality of the sexes, but she owes her life to the fact that men are still too chivalrous to take her at her word. A man with the record of Mrs. Pankhurst would have been allowed to die in prison of hunger or would have been killed by an excited and infuriated populace. The American air will have no more than a temporary effect for she returned from here once before more strenuously militant than ever. With the liberal donations of dollars anticipated she ought to be good for some real old shindys when she gets back. She may draw good audiences here now that the circus season is over but we do not believe she will be overburdened with contributions.

RAILROAD EFFICIENCY

A contributor to a recent issue of the "Railway Age Gazette" suggests that the men who can do most to increase the efficiency of freight equipment are those who have the direct handling of freight from its loading to its reaching its final destination. When business men or the public generally have cause for complaint they frequently overlook this fact, and instead of getting in touch with the lesser officials who are familiar with conditions they place the responsibility on the management, which, although theoretically responsible for everything that is wrong, is not in direct touch with the detailed working which counts for efficiency or the contrary. The higher officials may map out policies and urge improvement but it is the trainmasters, yardmasters, agents, trainmen, etc., who are responsible for good public service.

Recognizing this fact, it were well for all railroads to listen to good suggestions from their lesser officials and reward by promotion those whose ideas are worth adopting. Many a young man in the employ of great corporations has hesitated to suggest improvements knowing that he was merely regarded as a wheel in the machinery, expected to do his work almost mechanically and to obey orders unquestioningly. This policy is wrong. The freight handler in the shed may have some idea which would save the railroad and business men thousands of dollars yearly, and all railroad employees, or in fact employees of any corporation, should be encouraged by their superiors to aid in the attainment of greater efficiency.

WALSH WILL WIN

At the present time an unbiased examination of the relative chances of the candidates for governor will disclose David L. Walsh as the probable winner, and there is no good reason why the discovery should distress anyone who believes in ability, integrity and progressiveness. The democratic candidate undoubtedly possesses all three requisites and one is not compelled to take his own word for it or that of his supporters. He has been under the political limelight in this state for many years, and his vote has always been heavier where he has been best known. As an individual he is very desirable and his policies are in line with those popular measures which have received general sanction at most recent elections.

The republican candidate, Mr. Gardner, did not get very enthusiastic support from the members of his own party on the announcement of his nomination, and whatever chance he then had of ultimate success was lost by a tactless campaign on anything but vital issues and by recourse to crude political personalities. He adhered to a few hobbies despite the advice of the leaders of his party but even these were speedily abandoned, and he is now giving far more time to mud slinging at Mr. Bird than to explaining his personal views and aspirations to the people. Of the men on the street who discuss the campaign, none are more positive in their announcements of Gardner's defeat than the republicans. It is now a toss up between Bird and Gardner as to which will receive the larger vote but neither will be elected.

The candidacy of Governor Foss will prove an obstacle to Gardner and Bird, but a help to Mr. Walsh, whose election so far as can be foreseen at this date is a foregone conclusion.

GOBBLED UP BY TRUSTS

It now looks as though the individual who fondly hoped that the importation of Argentine Republic beef would deal a solar plexus to the beef trust is to be sadly disappointed, for the statement is made, apparently on good authority, that the meat barons have contracted for all the available refrigerator space on South American liners for the next three months. The exporters there are actuated more from a desire to profit by their business than to help us eat off the heavy burden of the beef trust, and if the latter gives them their money they will not hesitate to trade with them. Meantime let us watch the prices of the Argentine beef. We'll soon hear that the cattle down there are dying off from a mysterious malady or otherwise disappearing, and the rates will go up like a torballoon. We may not grow fat on Argentine beef but our philanthropic beef trust will.

BIRD AND GARDNER

Because of a strong personal animosity, or to conceal his lack of knowledge of state issues, or for some other reason, Congressman A. P. Gardner is far more interested in meddling with the progressive campaign than in standing on his own record and outlining his own policies. He surely does not make his primary aim the defeat of Charles Sumner Bird. If so, he is going the wrong way about carrying out his design. His attack on the progressive candidate in Fannell hall last Saturday evening will do much to still further discredit him in the eyes of the many who want a fair and open campaign, and it will get a degree of sympathy for Mr. Bird that will turn to him or to the democratic candidate some more of the wavering adherents of the peppery Mr. Gardner.

INVITING STATE INSPECTOR

Since the state board of health must eventually pass on any hospital site selected by the city, it looks like good business for the municipal council to invite a representative to help in selecting a site as it has voted to do on recommendation of Commissioner Cummings. If the choice of the visitor is to be final it will narrow down the question of the selection and bring order out of chaos. If not, his mission will be in vain. Most people will hope that the state inspector will be empowered to act as referee or umpire so that the contagious hospital question will pass from the list of suggested reforms which hob up every little while and then slumber until some enterprising official again revives their discussion for a brief period.

ENACTMENT NEAR

President Wilson has assured Chairman Underwood that the currency bill is certain to pass, and he does not speak hastily or without reflection. He also says that it will pass at the present session of congress. Evidently the opposition to the bill in the senate is fading away as outside objection is fading. Two of the greatest bankers in New York have declared it good with some minor exceptions and it has been unanimously approved by the New York chamber of commerce, probably the greatest body of its kind in the country. The amendments suggested by its strongest opponents could be adopted without materially altering its scope. Currency reform is sure to come and sooner than most people expect.

Seen and Heard

Although the Sayre-Wilson wedding at the White House is about a month away, Washington society knows as little about the plans as it did when the engagement of the president's daughter was first announced last summer. Society has been looking forward to a big wedding and it would seem that plans should be under way today. The town should be more and more agog with excitement, culminating in the day of days which will add one more White House bride to the long list. Is it going to be a morning, afternoon or evening wedding?

But people do not even know who is going to be invited. There is curiosity to know the Wilson wedding list, but regarding that there is only guess work. It is assumed that the Wilson family will be fully represented, even as fully as at the inauguration, and that the Sayre family will be on hand in force. Presumably also the whole cabinet. But who else? Ah, that is the question.

The East room where the wedding will take place will hold about 1000 people but it is not believed that that many people will be asked. It may be expected that many more than that number will want to go. If the president should invite all the members of congress and their wives they would more than fill the East room alone. And the wives would want to be there, wearing a grand new frock. A White House wedding is an historical event not to be missed.

Then there is the diplomatic corps, who number several hundred people and who cannot be denied invitations if invitations are sent out beyond the personal circles of the interested families and the cabinet. And there are other and others.

The Wilsons like simplicity and it is beginning to be surmised that the wedding will be relatively simple, far from the gorgeous affair the Longworth-Roosevelt wedding was.

Then there are the gifts. It is said that the president has discouraged any large undertakings along that line. The Longworth-Roosevelt wedding and the Taft silver wedding were marked by lavish gifts. The diplomatic corps and foreign potentates will be more at liberty to give to the bride-daughter of the president than to the president, who cannot by the constitution receive gifts from foreign sources, except flowers.

Moreover, the gifts are likely to be restricted in quantity by the fact that the Wilsons are as yet not intimately and extensively known in Washington society. Mrs. Wilson and her daughter with the bride-to-be and the bridegroom have yet to come to Washington to be a part of the preliminary and exciting entertainments. What has to be bought is being bought in New York just now.

Washington wants them back. Southern society is ready to show the bride character and her hospitality. It is willing to do things Washington would also like to see the bride-to-be. It hardly knows what she looks like.

The feminine branch of the White House cannot be back in toto too soon to suit Washington. Not until then, if it be, can the town begin to measure what are the White House wedding it is going to be and make preparations accordingly.

R. Fulton Cutting, president of a society for improving the condition of the poor, has learned from his years of philanthropic work to take a broad and charitable view of human failings. In his New York office the other day Mr. Cutting was talking about one of the society's proteges who, though giving a good deal of help, still kept going from bad to worse. With the wisdom and sympathy that his work has taught him, Mr. Cutting sighed and said:

"Any man will get along if he is

THE ANCIENT GOLFER

It was an ancient golfer, and he stood with one of three: "By the bathing spoon, thou crazy loon, Now wherefore stoppest me?"

He held me with his glittering eye, I had to get that alibi.

"I drove them straight from every tree—I soaked them in the creek, I played my mackie like a Braid or Vardon at his best."

"But eke when I had reached the green I was a pie-eyed mite, I would have had a 68, If I could only put it."

"I putted slow—I putted fast—I made them roll and hop; I putted standing up and crouched, But still they would not drop."

"About—about in reel and rant My crows went on the blink; Aye, putters, putters everywhere, But not a putt would sink."

"I hit the cup eleven times And rimmed it seven more; I hit my arm, I shrieked aloud, I went and Out and swore; I should have had a 65, But got a 94."

I left that crazy loon and ran As any one would do, And hustled off to tell a guy About the putts I blew; How I desired a 65, But got a 93.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

LET HIM TRY

Lowell Sun: Let Sulzer slump it out. This is a free country to some extent. Let Sulzer get elected to the assembly if he can; let him run for governor; let him keep himself before the public as long as the public will stand it. Surely if he is the kind the people of New York want, they ought to have all they want of him.

FOSS PLANK

Fall River Herald: Railroad regulation may be all right, just as Governor Foss proposes, but to make it the paramount issue of a state campaign is not likely to make the crowds at the post office toss their hats into the air with wild enthusiasm for the candidate who preaches that alone. The trouble is that there are a whole lot of people that don't give a hoot how the railroads are managed so long as the trains don't run over them.

MRS. PANKHURST

Boston Traveler: Mrs. Pankhurst is a promoter of arson for business reasons. It has been demonstrated conclusively by the fact that the Pankhurst family placed their cause on a money-making basis, and that in recent months there has been a falling off in the net proceeds. Just what the government finally decides to do with Mrs. Pankhurst is of not much importance from any standpoint. A woman who makes martyrdom her chief business asset is bound to pass as a martyr under any and all conditions.

YOUNG SUICIDES

Salem News: If that 18-year-old girl who has twice attempted suicide in Boston because of disappointed love, can be protected against herself, in less than three years she will look back upon her performance and wonder how she could have been so silly. The reader will see that we are giving her plenty of time.

AUTOMOBILE AGE

Lynn News: Who buys all the automobiles? Where does all the money come from? The number of machines in every state is increasing very rapidly. One factory alone is said to be turning out machines so fast that a year's output will exceed the number now in use in any one state. If the figures given in connection with the income tax are correct, there are in this country 500,000 people who have an income of $1000 a year. But the number of cars is far in excess of that, and rapidly increasing.

STILL AT LARGE

Police Cannot Locate Man Wanted for Wife Murder in Revere

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—Although the police of Revere and Boston have been carefully searching for Walter L. Brooks, who has been indicted for the murder of his wife, Gladys Brooks, at their home in Revere Saturday, Oct. 12, their efforts so far have not brought results.

Mrs. Brooks died from gas poisoning, and the fact that the gas jet was turned off when the body was found in her home at 65 Dehon street, Revere, two days after she had died, caused a police investigation with the result that Brooks is wanted to answer a murder charge.

There is some question now as to whether the young woman was Brooks' legal wife. Mrs. Thomas H. Reardon of Peabody, mother of the dead girl, says her daughter was married to Brooks in Providence, about two years ago.

At the Suffolk county court house, the records show that Brooks had no legal right to marry at that time, as he had a wife living. Mrs. Marion L. Galloway, Brooks' mother, says Mrs. Brooks No. 1 was divorced later, charging her husband with cruel and abusive treatment. The Providence records do not show the marriage of Brooks and Gladys Reardon.

POLICE COURT SESSION

SMALL DOCKET BEFORE JUDGE ENRIGHT TODAY—SEVERAL SENT TO STATE FARM

The local police court was not a very busy place this morning. No important cases were brought up for Judge Enright to rule upon and the small docket was soon disposed of.

A pretty little girl, seventeen years of age, who gave her name as Evelyn Boudard, was charged with entering the house of Marie Boutte and taking five dollars away with her when she left. The girl gave her residence as Haverhill and said that her folks were living there. Her case was held over until tomorrow so as to give Supt. Welch an opportunity to get in touch with the girl's parents.

Carl Johnson, a sturdy looking resident of North Chelmsford, was charged with being a drunken nuisance to his neighbors. Judge Enright after he had gone over the evidence thought that the best place for Johnson would be the state farm and accordingly ordered him sent to Bridgewater.

William Donnelly was charged with being a vagrant and his appearance gave every token of the charge being correct. Donnelly asked the court for a state farm and his request was granted.

John McPhee was ordered committed to jail for the term of four months. The defendant has been a frequent caller at the police station via the patrol wagon and the sentence was apparently expected by McPhee for he showed no surprise when Judge Enright announced it.

Martin Hayes was sent to jail for twenty days and James J. Hanley for ten in order that they might have a chance to clear their systems of the alcohol which they have consumed at the last few weeks. Both men showed the effects of over indulgence.

There were two $2 drunks this morning. John H. Hanley and Bernard Harvill, and but one $2 first offender. The probationary department released five first offenders who had no complaints registered against them.

THE RUSSELL HEIR

Master Finds "Fresno Dan" is Brother—Scores "Dakota Dan"

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—"Fresno Dan," the mysterious, non-communicative personage who came from the west and announced himself as the long-missing son of Daniel Blake Russell, at a time when the claimant, known as "Dakota Dan," was clamoring in the courts for recognition, has been declared to be the true heir by Attorney Gilbert A. A. Pevey, sitting as master for the supreme court.

And in his finding, which will not be formally filed until Tuesday, Master Pevey labels "Dakota Dan" as a deliberate falsifier and as none other than Jim Russell, who left his home in Northern New York to rove the country over.

As consistently as he declared himself to be the missing heir, "Dakota Dan" denied that he was Jim Russell, and in open court he passed the lie to the mother, father and other members of the Russell family who swore him to be of their flesh and blood.

Not Like Russell

Master Pevey in his finding declares that the facial and physical characteristics of the Russell family are totally lacking in "Dakota Dan." The latter he terms, "bold, illiterate and immoral."

On the other hand, Master Pevey finds that "Fresno Dan," reflects the Russell family traits in that he is "bashful, refined and of delicate sensibilities."

In referring to the testimony of the small army of witnesses who appeared for "Dakota Dan," the master says the majority were honest in their belief, but were "hypnotized" by the claimant.

But the master declares that two of the witnesses for "Dakota Dan" gave false testimony.

These persons, one of whom lives in Boston and the other in Melrose, are mentioned by name in the master's report.

Tribute to William C. Russell, the elder son of Daniel Blake Russell, and who now leads the life of a recluse on the Melrose estate, is thus expressed by Master Pevey in his report: "William C. Russell is of sound mind, studious and uninfluenced by anything but the facts."

And Master Pevey further states that the declaration by William C. Russell that "Fresno Dan" is his brother influenced him in reaching a decision.

Perjury Charges Hinted

"Dakota Dan's" testimony that his "father," Senator Daniel Blake Russell, had entanglements with women is branded as absolutely unfounded by the master. Nothing, he says, in the life of Senator Russell justified such statements.

District Attorney Higgins of Middlesex county was asked by a reporter yesterday afternoon what his attitude would be in the event of Master Pevey's report declaring "Dakota Dan" or any other person had given perjured testimony.

"If I become convinced that perjury was committed I shall take steps toward the prosecution of the offender," said Mr. Higgins. "But before deciding my course in the matter I shall first read carefully the entire evidence of the hearing before Master Pevey."

If there are indications of perjury I shall make a personal investigation. Of course, it is liable that a person may give untruthful testimony without realizing that the statements made are not true. If, after an investigation, I feel that the facts warrant prosecution I shall immediately take such action. I have had no conference with Master Pevey."

EUGENICS A JOKE

Says Dr. George V. N. Dearborn, Prof. of Physiology at Tufts

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—Dr. George V. N. Dearborn, professor of physiology at Tufts Medical school, in the opening lecture at the School of Eugenics on Boylston street last night, declared that eugenic marriages were surely a joke.

"No woman with any sense will marry a man unless she knows whether he is healthy or not. No man will marry a woman unless he knows whether she is healthy or not," he said.

"Eugenic marriages will come. A law for eugenic marriages is interfering too much with the rights of the individual. I am not a reformer and am skeptical of instantaneous reform," he said. "It will come I am sure, but it will come through a knowledge of the fundamental principles of life."

Dr. Dearborn lectured upon "psychology of sex." In opening he said: "Knowledge is the one forever reliable basis for the improvement of our life. The psychology of life is enormously complex and interrelated, and therefore is little understood. The average individual doesn't understand himself as far as sex is concerned."

"Love," he said, "involves both the mind and body, but it is a common thing to confuse love with friendship. Love and children are the most important things in the world."

He further went on to say that he did not believe that sex hygiene should be taught in the schools. "It will be a generation at least before this can be done, he said. "Educate the parents first. Dr. Dearborn stated, on the other hand, that some of the problems of sex should be and could be taught children in the schools at the age of 6 and 7 years."

"Three children is an ideal family, biologically and rationally. Large families are a luxury. As long as every couple has two or three children I cannot see possibly why any government should ask any more than that."

"Our food supply is at present inadequate. It is undeveloped. It is lessening families with perfect sanction for so doing. The birth rate is continually diminishing and this is the only reason—the inadequate food supply."

After character has developed and the person has reproduced his kind, there is no reason for living," was a statement, he made in the course of the lecture. "This is biologically speaking."

"The body is made to die after it has served its purpose. All bodies are machines and all machines wear out. Death appears to be inherent in life. Brutes live hygienically, but they die."

WALSH RALLY

Candidate Spoke on Railroads at North Adams Last Night

NORTH ADAMS, Oct. 22.—Lieutenant-Governor David I. Walsh, democratic candidate for governor, spoke at rallies in Pittsfield, Adams and this city last night.

He spoke in part:

"The democratic platform declares in no unmistakable language its position in reference to public service corporations, particularly railroads. We stand for the complete separation of the Boston and Maine and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad corporations, and the absolute divorce of street railways and the competing steamboat lines."

"Prior to 1893 practically all our street railway lines were built, financed and managed by local capital. There was a rapid and steady growth, and a manifest eagerness to build street railways all over the commonwealth. Merchants and men of limited means in the larger cities and towns were anxious and willing to invest capital to build street railway lines, as much for the purpose of making their communities centres of business activities as for the financial return that might come to them. Lines were extended into the smaller towns and the progress of this development was most gratifying."

"About the year 1895, the building of street railways substantially stopped, particularly the extension of small suburban lines. This was due to the fact that at that time the street railways believed that the street railways were competing and interfering with their passenger business, and the steam railroads thereupon set about to get control of the network of independent street railway companies that were flourishing in various parts of the commonwealth."

"As the candidate of the democratic party for the office of governor, I shall insist when elected that such public servants as I have the power to appoint to take charge of the regulation of public service corporations shall centre their attention at all times upon first, the giving of good service to the public, second, upon the securing of fair returns to investors in the securities of these corporations, and third, on encouraging the building of railroads, both steam and electric, whenever necessary, and I shall further and unalterably insist that such officials be uncontrolled and unhampered by financial or corporate influences."

Evidence in the case has been worked up by four Burns detectives. There are 35 charges of graft against the chief and 21 of them are now being considered.

The Old Lowell National Bank, 25 Central street, is open from 7 till 9 Saturday evenings.

HELLED MEETING

Principals of Evening Schools Appointed but Not Permanently

State Will Not Pay Half Expense of Last Year's Evening School

The members of the school board held a special meeting last night for the purpose of completing arrangements for the evening schools, and also to appoint additional teachers to the Industrial school. In the course of the meeting it was made known that the state board had failed to reimburse the city for one-half the expense of maintaining the girls' department of the evening Industrial school, on account of the poor work done in the year ending last March. The superintendent of schools was authorized to appoint a clerk for the attendance officers, and janitors were elected.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Dr. Lambert, and the first matter taken up was the appointment of janitors, according to their rank on the civil service list. Cornelius F. Cronin was elected at a salary of $2.50 a day; Geo. Daley, janitor at the Mann evening school at a salary of $1.50 per night, and William McKenzie, to the Green school at a salary of $1.50 per night.

Temporary principals for evening schools, to serve until such time as the school committee shall terminate the arrangement, were appointed as follows:

Chas. E. Graves, Greenhalge school; Melville F. Master, Riverside school; David E. Barlow, Howard street school; John J. Queenan, Middlesex Village school.

It is understood that these principals are not to be placed on the permanent eligible list, and their salary was fixed at $2 per evening.

New teachers for the Industrial school were appointed as follows:

Mrs. Grace E. Stevens, assistant in dressmaking and cooking; $550; A. H. Beane, machinist for automobile department; $500; Patrick A. Lyons, head of machine department; $1000; Charles W. Macdonald, head of electrical department; $1200. Day and evening work. The following appointments were made to the evening Industrial school:

Charles Thibault, bookbinding; John Cheatham, picking and carding; John McGuinness, plumbing; Henry Fortier, ring spinning; fixing; Mrs. Harriet Sturtevant, cooking; at $1.50 per evening.

William Webb, head of the machine shop work in the local Industrial school, and who recently was appointed head of the Lawrence Industrial school, tendered his resignation and the same was accepted, and a vote of thanks for efficiency and faithfulness was given.

The question of fixing the salary for Dr. E. A. Kent, who is in charge of the dental clinic, was taken up and on recommendation of the finance committee, it was voted to pay the doctor $600 per year for his services.

Dr. Bagley thought $600 was not sufficient and he made a motion that the salary be fixed at $1000 a year, but he was the only one to vote in favor.

The Middlesex County Teachers' convention will be held Friday, Oct. 30, and the school board voted to grant the teachers' permission to attend.

Helen R. Riley's name was placed on the emergency list.

A petition from the Scandinavian citizens of this city for the opening of an evening school in the Butler school was read and granted and the superintendent was instructed to assign an interpreter at $1.25 per evening.

It was also announced that the attendance officers were to be overhauled with work on account of the issuing of age and school certificates, and in order to give the officers a chance to attend to their regular work, it was voted that the superintendent be instructed to assign a temporary substitute teachers as clerk of the department.

Mr. Thornton said about 11,000 certificates were to be issued, and although the officers have been at work for about four weeks, only 3000 papers have thus far been given out.

A surprise was sprung on the board when Mr. Farrington said that he has become aware for the first time that the state has failed to reimburse the school department for one-half the expense of the girls' evening Industrial school for the year ending last March.

He said the agreement between the state and the city was that representatives of the state board should notify the local officials, if the work was not up to the standard, that unless some change be made, reimbursement would be refused. He moved that the superintendent be requested to ask them in writing, at what time and to whom, notice should be given.

The motion was carried. It was also voted to discontinue the evening classes at the Mann industrial school and transfer the pupils and teachers to the Green school, on account of unsafe conditions at the Worthen street school, for evening work, in case of fire, with crowded rooms on the upper floors.

Principals of Evening Schools Appointed but Not Permanently

State Will Not Pay Half Expense of Last Year's Evening School

The members of the school board held a special meeting last night for the purpose of completing arrangements for the evening schools, and also to appoint additional teachers to the Industrial school. In the course of the meeting it was made known that the state board had failed to reimburse the city for one-half the expense of maintaining the girls' department of the evening Industrial school, on account of the poor work done in the year ending last March. The superintendent of schools was authorized to appoint a clerk for the attendance officers, and janitors were elected.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Dr. Lambert, and the first matter taken up was the appointment of janitors, according to their rank on the civil service list. Cornelius F. Cronin was elected at a salary of $2.50 a day; Geo. Daley, janitor at the Mann evening school at a salary of $1.50 per night, and William McKenzie, to the Green school at a salary of $1.50 per night.

Temporary principals for evening schools, to serve until such time as the school committee shall terminate the arrangement, were appointed as follows:

Chas. E. Graves, Greenhalge school; Melville F. Master, Riverside school; David E. Barlow, Howard street school; John J. Queenan, Middlesex Village school.

It is understood that these principals are not to be placed on the permanent eligible list, and their salary was fixed at $2 per evening.

New teachers for the Industrial school were appointed as follows:

Mrs. Grace E. Stevens, assistant in dressmaking and cooking; $550; A. H. Beane, machinist for automobile department; $500; Patrick A. Lyons, head of machine department; $1000; Charles W. Macdonald, head of electrical department; $1200. Day and evening work. The following appointments were made to the evening Industrial school:

Charles Thibault, bookbinding; John Cheatham, picking and carding; John McGuinness, plumbing; Henry Fortier, ring spinning; fixing; Mrs. Harriet Sturtevant, cooking; at $1.50 per evening.

William Webb, head of the machine shop work in the local Industrial school, and who recently was appointed head of the Lawrence Industrial school, tendered his resignation and the same was accepted, and a vote of thanks for efficiency and faithfulness was given.

The question of fixing the salary for Dr. E. A. Kent, who is in charge of the dental clinic, was taken up and on recommendation of the finance committee, it was voted to pay the doctor $600 per year for his services.

Dr. Bagley thought $600 was not sufficient and he made a motion that the salary be fixed at $1000 a year, but he was the only one to vote in favor.

The Middlesex County Teachers' convention will be held Friday, Oct. 30, and the school board voted to grant the teachers' permission to attend.

Helen R. Riley's name was placed on the emergency list.

A petition from the Scandinavian citizens of this city for the opening of an evening school in the Butler school was read and granted and the superintendent was instructed to assign an interpreter at $1.25 per evening.

It was also announced that the attendance officers were to be overhauled with work on account of the issuing of age and school certificates, and in order to give the officers a chance to attend to their regular work, it was voted that the superintendent be instructed to assign a temporary substitute teachers as clerk of the department.

Mr. Thornton said about 11,000 certificates were to be issued, and although the officers have been at work for about four weeks, only 3000 papers have thus far been given out.

A surprise was sprung on the board when Mr. Farrington said that he has become aware for the first time that the state has failed to reimburse the school department for one-half the expense of the girls' evening Industrial school for the year ending last March.

He said the agreement between the state and the city was that representatives of the state board should notify the local officials, if the work was not up to the standard, that unless some change be made, reimbursement would be refused. He moved that the superintendent be requested to ask them in writing, at what time and to whom, notice should be given.

The motion was carried. It was also voted to discontinue the evening classes at the Mann industrial school and transfer the pupils and teachers to the Green school, on account of unsafe conditions at the Worthen street school, for evening work, in case of fire, with crowded rooms on the upper floors.

CITY TO GET CLEAR DEED

From Locks & Canals if West Centralville Land is Purchased for Public Park

At a recent meeting of the municipal council certain members of the council discussed the proposed sale of a tract of land in West Centralville for public park purposes, and the question was asked if the land proposed to be purchased, would, if bought by the property of the city of Lowell, and also if certain lots of this land could be sold by the city to other purchasers. Inasmuch as no one present could give the desired information, Commissioner Cummings took upon himself the task of finding out, and accordingly he wrote the following letter to Hiram F. Mills, engineer for the proprietors of the Locks & Canals:

Lowell, Oct. 15, 1913.
Mr. Hiram F. Mills,
Dear Sir: In the discussion in the municipal council Tuesday the question was asked if the land proposed to be purchased for a public playground in West Centralville by the city of Lowell from your company would be purchased by the property of the city of Lowell with the reservation mentioned in your letter to me. The reason for the question is that one of the aldermen asked if, after the purchase, certain lots of land facing Lakeview avenue could be sold by the city of Lowell without restriction. This led to the further inquiry of the deed to be given by the Locks and Canals Co. to the city of Lowell in the event of a purchase by the city will contain a reservation that the land in question will revert to the proprietors of the Locks and Canals on Merrimack river if it is not used as a public playground or for park purposes. If you will give your immediate attention and a reply and you will oblige.

Sincerely yours,
Lawrence Cummings, Alderman.
Mr. Mills' reply was as follows:
Lowell, Mass., Oct. 18, 1913.
Alderman Lawrence Cummings,
Commissioner of Public Property,
Lowell, Mass.
Dear Sir: I have received your letter of Oct. 15th. One of the lots sold on Alken avenue is bounded by a proposed street which condition would have to be respected.

The deed proposed would be of our usual form of quit claim deed, and no reservation not mentioned in my letter of Oct. 10, would be expected.

Respectfully yours,
Hiram F. Mills,
Engineer P. L. & C.

U. S. SALOONS

The Anti-Saloon League Gets After Sec. McAdoo—Say its a Crime

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Uncle Sam as a saloonkeeper has drawn the fire of the Anti-Saloon league and Secretary McAdoo is the target at which the fulminations of the white ribboners are being hurled. The government owns a large block of property just south of the treasury, on which it is proposed to erect homes for the departments of state, justice and possibly one other. On the tract, which is occupied by business buildings, are three saloons. All of the tenants rent by the month from the government.

"Heavens," cried the anti, when they discovered this fact, "this is a crime and a stain on good citizenship." Whereupon they took the matter up with the secretary of the treasury. Mr. McAdoo today was a furtive look.

HOUSE ROBBED IN BELVIDERE

Home of R. J. Shepard Ransacked and Jewelry Stolen

Break Discovered by Miss Eva Shepard—Police Investigating

The home of Robert J. Shepard on Fort Hill avenue was broken into yesterday afternoon and considerable jewelry stolen. This is the second day-light break which has been made in this vicinity during the past few months and the details coincide in many respects with the break in the house of Robert B. Wood on the same street which occurred this summer. The Wood home is only a few steps from the house of Mr. Shepard.

The break was made through the cellar door having apparently been battered in with an axe or other heavy instrument. No one in the neighborhood either heard the noise which must have accompanied the break nor saw any strangers in the vicinity.

Miss Eva Shepard was the first one of the family to discover that the house had been entered. She came home about four o'clock in the afternoon and found everything in the house in a ransacked condition. Bureau drawers were pulled out and the contents scattered over the floors and even the closets were searched in an effort to reveal articles of value.

The articles missing included four gold watches, two gold bracelets, a gold locket and chain and a large number of trinkets of lesser value.

The police were immediately notified of the break and larceny and took steps at once to try and secure a clew to the daylight robber. There is only one person who is remembered to have been here in the neighborhood during the afternoon, a young man who seemed to be in search of a Mr. Norcross. Although the police are busy with the affair the evidence which they have to go on is so slight that there seems very little chance of the thief's apprehension.

CAPABILITIES OF INDIAN

DISCUSSED AT CONFERENCE OF FRIENDS OF THE INDIAN AND OTHER DEPENDENT PEOPLE

MOHONK LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Divergent views of the capabilities of the Indian started a debate here today that in one form or another will reach the national congress. It marked the opening of the annual conference of Friends of the Indian and Other dependent Peoples. There was expressed an urgent demand for taking Indian affairs out of politics and putting them in the care of a non-partisan commission not subject to the frequent change of membership which now, it is said, defeated many of the movements started by this organization and others like it.

The five so-called civilized tribes of Oklahoma were the Indians mainly discussed today.

P. J. Hurley, national attorney for the Choctaw nation, denounced interests which he alleged were defeating efforts to have congress distribute ten million dollars belonging to the Choctaws and Chickasaws and derived from the sale of their lands. The failure to distribute these moneys, he asserted, was due to attorneys hired on the contingent fee basis by persons who hoped to benefit by proving citizenship in the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations if the government should reopen the tribal rolls. Such citizenship was worth from $5000 to $8000, he said.

DEPOSITORS OF "TRADERS"

Advised Not to Sell Accounts to Money, Sharks—Receiver Murray Talks to Sun Representative

The recently appointed receiver of the Traders National bank, Mr. Harold G. Murray, came to Lowell yesterday to begin his duties in that capacity at the request of the federal government. Mr. Murray is receiver of the First National bank of Norwich, Conn., and comes here from that city.

He has the reputation of being an expert in banking and a man of exceptional insight in financial matters, and local business men and depositors have expressed pleasure at the knowledge of his appointment as receiver.

All persons having claims against the Traders bank are requested to have their claims in to Mr. Murray within three months. Unless this is done, the claims will be disallowed.

There has been no disturbance about the bank doors, though the authorities prepared themselves for such difficulties. It is believed that the announcement that the depositors will be protected was the means of quieting the people and restoring their confidence.

Mr. William F. Hillis gave out a brief statement in which he thanked the other banks for their offers of assistance. He expressed confidence that the depositors will be paid dollar for dollar when the affairs of the bank are straightened out. The work of examining the books is going on at the present time.

It has been said that money sharks will endeavor to buy up the accounts of many of the depositors at this bank, as has been done at various times in other cities. The practice is to give from $50 to $75 on $100. These money sharks are noted for their unscrupulous methods of imposing on the poor and needy and it is to be hoped that the depositors of the Traders bank will be proof against their probable attempts to profit unduly by the temporary lack of confidence of those whose accounts are at present tied up.

Receiver Murray Talks

A reporter of The Sun called at the bank this morning and had an interview with the receiver, Mr. Harold G. Murray, who discussed many phases of the involved situation but did not, however, make any formal statement, following in this the wishes of the federal government.

When asked as to the probable length of time before the books are examined and the actual status of the bank's finances known, Mr. Murray said:

"We cannot at this time even state approximately when the examination is to be completed, as there are an enormous number of accounts and each will have to be checked up individually. It will be a very long process."

What would you say to the depositors, who naturally look to the receiver for an unbiased opinion, as to what they should do and what their prospects are?"

"What they will ultimately receive we cannot say at this time, but they should realize that the action of the government in closing the bank is to protect their interests. The affairs of the bank are now being handled for the depositors and they will be protected as far as possible. All the money available will be collected and all will receive equal treatment whether their accounts are in the commercial or in the savings departments. The government does not recognize any distinction and there will be equal treatment for all. The depositor with the smallest account will receive proportionately as much as the depositor

"What must the depositors do to recover their money or any part of it?"

"The usual procedure is for the depositors to bring their pass books to the bank where the receiver will have them verified. As soon as a balance is struck they shall have their books back and with them a form on which they shall make out the amount of their claim against the bank. On depositing this claim they will receive a certificate of their deposit and on that certificate the dividend will be paid. This certificate is in negotiable form and can be bought or sold."

I would advise all depositors, however, not to trade or sell their accounts until the final adjustment is made. Unscrupulous people often strive to profit by such occurrences as the present embarrassment of the Traders bank."

Here one of the officials of the bank interposed to say that as there are over 15,000 accounts, he hoped all the depositors would not bring their pass books at one time.

There have been some statements to the effect that deposits were made at the bank on Monday morning a few hours before the doors were closed, but these statements are not correct. No deposits were made and no money was received after Saturday night.

Every succeeding day brings new stories of the disappointed victims of the bank. Thousands who had deposited in the Christmas savings department are lamenting the loss of all they had.

Many of them are poor people to whom a ten dollar bill means more than would a large amount to parties better situated. Many families stunted themselves in the necessities of life in order to deposit a little money in the Christmas savings department. They are now bewailing their misfortune. There are hundreds of such people in wards four and five and in the Greek district.

GIRL ABDUCTED

ing as a cause, jealousy because of the fact that a certain young man had decided to devote his life to the service of his country. In this case no evidence was found to convict the defendant and the case was dismissed. Miss Scraggs, however, said that the threatening letters continued to come to her.

The story of the alleged abduction, as given to the police, is as follows: At ten o'clock last night, Mr. Scraggs, of 33-Claire street, phoned to the police station to tell the authorities that Ethel had gone to the postoffice early in the evening and had not returned.

At 10:45 p. m. last night, Ethel telephoned to her folks in this city, from the railroad station at Waltham, saying that she had been knocked down and kidnapped by two men at the postoffice, and taken in an auto and left on the streets at Waltham. At 1:30 o'clock this morning, the police of Waltham called the local police and said that they were holding one Ethel Scraggs at the station there for safe keeping, and that the girl had claimed to have been kidnapped at the Lowell postoffice.

The girl, in her story, said that she had gone to the postoffice, about five o'clock yesterday afternoon, although the other accounts seem to indicate that it was later in the evening. She was seized by two men and rushed into a covered automobile nearby, and taken to a large house somewhere on the road between Lowell and Waltham. There, she stated, she awoke to find herself lying on a couch. She said that she had not been assaulted. One of the men, according to her accounts, said that he was going to Boston, while the other took her in the machine, to Waltham, where he left her at the corner of Dale and Bacon streets. The men were young men, she said, wore blue suits, one having a gray overcoat and the other a brown one. Arriving at the Waltham railroad station, she telephoned her folks in this city, and then went to the police station. There she was held for safe keeping.

Miss Scraggs said that she has a gentleman friend living in Waltham and that some time ago she received a telephone message to the effect that he had been seriously injured, and to go to him at once. She went, but only to find that it was all a hoax. Last night, she telephoned her young man friend and he came to the police station to take her away.

A brother of the girl was interviewed this morning by The Sun man and he said that the above story is true. He stated that the girl's mother had gone to Waltham to bring her home and she would return with the girl this afternoon.

NAVAL ACADEMY

Six Took Examination for Appointment Held at High School

A competitive examination to determine who Congressman John Jacob Rogers will designate to take the official examination for appointment to the United States Naval academy at Annapolis Md., was held at the Lowell High school this morning.

This is the first competitive examination ever held in the 5th district to decide who the appointees shall be. Any young man between the age of 16 and 20 years had the opportunity of taking the examination which is in charge of the United States civil service commission. George H. Guernsey, supervisor. He is assisted by Mr. A. J. Wilson and both are employees at the local post office. There were six applicants for the position this morning and the four highest will be chosen by Congressman Rogers one as appointee and the other three as alternates.

It is planned by Congressman Rogers to have the four highest in the examination today put through a physical examination in the near future. This will give the applicant an idea of his chance of passing the final examination and if he does not make a good showing in this preliminary it will not be necessary for him to prepare for the final examination next June.

The United States civil service commission at Washington is very much interested in this scheme of securing the best qualified young man in the district for the appointment and Congressman Rogers has received in the district for the appointment and Congressman Rogers has received requests from several congressmen for literature or facts relative to the way it is being carried out.

This examination has been given much publicity as policies have been placed on public buildings throughout the district and most of the young men's clubs have been notified although only 12 applied for information and 6 appeared this morning. Two of the applicants live in this city while the others come from Chelmsford, Methuen, Stow and Woburn.

Congressman Rogers arrived in this city about 10 o'clock this morning from Washington, his chief business being to look after the interests of the applicants.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 22.—For the first time in the recollection of most of those present, the annual meeting of the stockholders of the New Haven road was not held in the little 2nd floor in the "yellow" building today. Instead, in anticipation of an outpouring of stockholders, Harmond hall in Elm street was used, where seating accommodations were ample.

Many of those present had copies of the annual report of the company. This report in recent years had dealt entirely with the affairs of the parent or steam company but the 1913 report is greatly amplified. Not only are the accounts of the New Haven company extended in detail but the income accounts and balance sheets of subsidiary and leased lines with more or less descriptive matter are embraced within the covers.

In this connection it is recalled that at the recent special meeting A. Maxey Hiller of this city offered a resolution to the effect that the directors be asked to make a statement in the annual report of the total receipts and expenses and income account of subsidiary and leased lines. The resolution was ruled out as not being germane to the call for the meeting with the suggestion that it be offered at the annual meeting.

The amplified statement of the company meets everything called for by Mr. Hiller's resolution. The exception as regards subsidiaries it is stated in the report are those properties whose accounts are embraced in others already reported upon.

The attendance was upwards of 400, most of whom were from New Haven. Elliott called the session to order. A number of the directors had seats near the platform and on an easel was a large map of New England with the New Haven system outlined upon it.

As soon as Secretary Clark had read the call for the meeting, Clarence Vanner of New York moved that the minutes of the board of directors and of the executive committee of the board relating to the annual statement be presented. Mr. Elliott replied that the call distinctly stated that the annual statement would be under consideration.

Too Much Silence

Mr. Vanner then said there had been too much silence on the part of the stockholders and too much concealment on the part of the directors in the past and the time had come when the directors of the corporation, for their own protection and enlightenment of stockholders, should present the annual statement in a form that would be understood by the stockholders.

"I desire to ask in all candor," he said, "for an explanation of the statement so that stockholders will not have to vote blindly on the acts of the board of directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford company. Any person voting under section 3 of the call is voting under a cloud of ignorance."

Approving the annual report even if steeped in the vats of fraud. I do not mean to say that there is anything fraudulent in the acts of the directors but I do want a fair discussion of the company's affairs."

At the request of President Elliott Mr. Vanner put his motion in writing.

Discuss Annual Statement

In reply to a question by former Governor Morgan Rutledge, Mr. Elliott said he did not intend to confine the business of the meeting to the exact letter of the call but would permit a discussion of the annual statement. A resolution was offered by D. A. Blakesley of New Haven to approve the annual report and the acts of the directors. It was not put at the time, however, as Mr. Vanner's motion had been seconded from all parts of the hall. Mr. Vanner asked for a viva voce vote which Mr. Elliott said he would not order as this was a stockholders meeting. He said it would take two days to read the details of the company's affairs as asked by Mr. Vanner. The officers of the company, he added, wanted a free discussion of the company's affairs and he himself was ready to answer any questions.

FIRE AT WATSON AVENUE

Shortly before one o'clock this afternoon the fire department was called to Watson avenue in a response to an alarm from box 182. The blaze was in a close of the building owned by Henry C. Clapp. Very little damage was done by the flames before the chemical was applied by the firemen and the fire extinguished. The origin of the fire is unknown.

EATON CASE

Continued

Illness, as Scott said she told it to him at the time, agreed with the testimony given at the trial. She told the officer that the admiral was a "dope fiend," and that he used both opium and morphine. She said she had pawned her jewels to pay his bills, although she knew he was trying to poison her.

When Mrs. Eaton's mother remonstrated with her for talking too much to the officers, Mrs. Eaton told her she was "rather go to fall than to an asylum with the monkeys hopping around the bars," Scott said.

Mrs. Eaton Excited

Mrs. Eaton seemed more excited than grief-stricken when the officers were in the house, the officer said, and nearly knocked her husband's body from the stand on which it rested.

Scott said under cross examination that Mrs. Eaton showed no disposition to conceal anything, nor was he able in a search of the drug stores in the vicinity, or in Boston, Washington, Georgetown, D. C., and Alexandria, Va., to find anyone who had ever sold any poison to Mrs. Eaton.

Mrs. Marshall Bursey of Washington, D. C., was recalled to the stand when Mr. Morse, for the defense, introduced a letter written to Mrs. Eaton by Mrs. Bursey on March 23 last and in this letter Mrs. Bursey expressed her faith in Mrs. Eaton's innocence and added:

"For you always talked of your husband and all you thought of him."

Scott's testimony was corroborated by Deputy Sheriff Condon, who assisted in the investigation of the admiral's death.

Physician Rude

A letter written by Mrs. Eaton to a Rockland physician four years ago was read into the record during the testimony of Dr. Charles Colgate, Jr. In the letter Mrs. Eaton complained that the physician had been rude to her. The letter, in part, follows:

"I came to you for advice, for it is the brain of a world renowned man who is going. We do not have family rows or quarrels. My husband loves his children and me as much as a poor diseased brain can. I gave up an elegant home in Brookline and three householders' society to bring this poor, deluded man out into the country to regain his health, which I thought was caused by drinking to excess and too much money and social obligations, etc. After hard, long, earnest, conscientious work I proved to myself the trouble is of deeper origin than whiskey and wear and tear of city life, and its follies, and I am from a fine old family and a lady accustomed to the best class of society all my life. A woman who has been entertained by and entertained the aristocratic people of the United States and has always had the reputation of being a Christian woman and a lady by all that the word 'lady' implies, and to be treated in the very unbecoming manner of this afternoon to me is unendurable."

"Respectfully,
(Signed) 'Mrs. J. F. Eaton'"

Hinted at Poison

"P. S.—Dear Doctor Colgate: Please remember in all this very dreadful affair which is at times a nightmare to me in all its horrors that I am a woman now at the best time of my life and by proving this to be the truth I practically beggar myself and lose hundreds if not thousands and I will have to face the world alone and without money or friends (for without money we have few) and possibly lots of talk and three children. So you must see it is to my financial interests to live with him if it is possible. I have paid off most of his debts. There are enough debts left to use up all his salary for two years more and this home only half paid for would go and I would have no use for such things."

Kind of furniture I have and it would all be a loss for me. So you must believe that I would realize (sic) how important the step is I am taking not to dare to do such a thing unless it were poison on account of my children's future comfort, aside from pity I may feel for my unfortunate husband in the humiliation and disgrace of it all which he would feel keenly."

Responsible For Boy's Death

Another letter from Mrs. Eaton to Dr. Colgate, written after the death of the admiral's adopted child, was also introduced. In this letter Mrs. Eaton wrote:

"I hold you morally responsible for the death of my boy. Had you examined the admiral for his sanity it would have saved the life of my dear little boy."

Dr. Colgate told of many conversations with Mrs. Eaton, who had sought his assistance in having the admiral committed to an insane hospital. She said that her husband was insane and that he had repeatedly insulted the householders. She also declared that he had insulted June and that she had been obliged to put a lock on June's door for her daughter's protection.

THE NEGRO QUESTION

Commanding Topic at This Afternoon's Session of the Episcopal Church Convention in New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The nine-year old question of negro representation in the house of bishops was the commanding topic of legislation to be dealt with this afternoon at the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church. At present the negro membership is under the direction of the diocesan committee on racial episcopate would place this entire membership under the direction of a single negro bishop and give to this bishop a seat and a vote in the house of bishops.

Sentiment in the house of deputies today to be almost evenly divided on the question.

In the house of bishops, however, there was a strong feeling that the wishes of the southern bishops who would be most directly affected should determine the action of the house. To this end there was afoot a movement to refer the entire matter to the southern bishops and sustain a majority report.

At a joint session of the two houses today the work of the church among American negroes, Indians and inhabitants of West Africa was discussed.

The cryptic handwriting of a southern bishop caused an error in the announcement of the election of a bishop of Spokane last Monday, which was not discovered until today. The announcement made then was that the office had been filled by the selection of the Rev. Dr. William B. Capers of Columbia, Tenn. Examination today of the original draft of the resolution adopted showed that the new bishop of Spokane is the Rev. Dr. W. T. Capers, rector of the church of the Holy Apostles of Philadelphia; a brother of W. B. Capers.

ECZEMA ON FACE

ITCHED SO SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

Suffering Almost Intolerable and Did Not Go Out Without a Veil—First Use of Resinol Brought Relief

Chicago, Ill., June 20, 1913.—"I had a severe case of eczema on my face. It looked like little red pimples and got so bad that I did not go out without wearing a veil. I could scarcely sleep at night, the itching and burning were almost intolerable. I had been suffering from this for several weeks, and had tried several salves, but with practically no results. I did not know what I should try next. After one application of Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment I was able to have a good night's sleep. I used Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment for only about two months and I was completely cured."

EVERY DAY SOMEONE

Finds out that the drug, caffeine, in coffee is the cause of headache, nervousness, irritable heart, insomnia or some other obscure ache or pain.

Steady nerves and a clear brain—the best asset any man or woman can have—are often impossible to the regular coffee drinker.

POSTUM

If the old aches and pains begin to leave after a few days on Postum, you'll know whether to stick to it or go back to coffee troubles.

Drink It Instead of Coffee—

"THERE'S A REASON"

EASY CHANGE

When Coffee is Doing Harm

A lady writes from the land of cotton of the results of a four years' use of the food beverage, Postum:

"Ever since I can remember we had used coffee three times a day. It had a more or less injurious effect upon us all, and I suffered almost death from indigestion and nervousness."

"I know it was coffee, because when I would leave it off for a few days I would feel better. But it was hard to give coffee up, even though I realized how harmful it was to me."

"At last I found a perfectly easy way to make the change. Four years ago I abandoned the coffee habit and began to drink Postum and I also influenced the rest of the family to do the same."

"Even the children are allowed to drink it as freely as they do water. And it has done us all great good. I no longer suffer from indigestion, and my nerves are in admirable tone since I began to use Postum. We never use coffee any more."

"We appreciate Postum as a delightful and healthful beverage, which not only invigorates but supplies the best of nourishment as well." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Athletes and Athletics

The White Sox finally beat the Giants yesterday in their game at Peoria, Ill. Leverage was in the box for the Chicago team and Wiltz was on the firing line for the New Yorkers. The crowd was not up to the expectations of the management. So far the trip of the team has been devoid of financial returns.

Gumbert Smith did what was predicted in his bout with Tony Ross last night at the Boston club and sent his opponent to the mat for the count in the tenth round of their scheduled twelve session contest. Ross had the better of the affair up to the sixth round but Smith's right hand wallop proved too much for the Newcastle man. The Californian should have knocked out his man in the eighth round but could not put over the punch.

The Dartmouth-Princeton game next Saturday will be the classic gridiron battle of the week. Both teams are confident of pulling off a win. Dartmouth will be without the services of Nat Ambrose who is laid up with a pulled tendon resolved in the Williams game. Over a thousand students will leave Hanover by special train next Friday to take in the game.

The news that Captain Storor of Harvard may be shifted from tackle to one of the wings has caused a great stir among those on the inside of Cambridge athletics. Storor was originally a center and if he is pushed out to an end position it will be a shift that has never had a precedent on a big college eleven.

Knockout Brown will again jump into the limelight next week when he faces Matty Baldwin in Boston. Many thought that the tow headed fighter was practically done with the ring game but he may spring a surprise on the fans in his go with Baldwin.

This Speaker joins the White Sox team today. It is expected that all the stars will be on hand before the two clubs leave this country for their world tour. When the ball players arrived, this morning snow covered the ground and today's game may be postponed.

Jack Barry, the Athletics' shortstop, has arrived at his home in Worcester and preparations are now afoot to give him a large reception and banquet. Barry was formerly a student of Holy Cross college, which is located in Worcester, and all the college athletes are turning up things for a royal welcome to the great infielder.

Miller, the quarterback of the Pennsylvania State team, which plays Harvard Saturday at the Stadium, will be watched with great interest. Miller is said to be one of the greatest generals that has ever been turned out despite his size.

The Brooklyn baseball team left for Cuba today. They will stop at Charlotte, N. C., and play two games with a team picked up by Joe Jackson, the Cleveland outfielder. The club is managed by Jake Daubert and will play a dozen games on the island and will return about Christmas time.

Sparackling, the old All-America quarterback, has been sent for in a hurry by the Brown football authorities in a desperate effort to bolster up their team for the remaining games. Sparackling can tell them a lot about the game if they will only profit by it. Brown has the weakest team this year that she has placed on the gridiron for ten seasons.

A DIFFICULT JOB

Matchmaker for Boxing, Club Up Against It—Yelle and Alger Training Hard

Freddie Yelle, who will meet Geo. Alger here Friday is training hard and expects to win. He plans an active campaign this season, and has a match on with Terry Brooks at Webster next week. Another incentive for winning Friday night is the fact that the local matchmaker plans to match the winner with Bay Wood of Fall River. This offer has inspired both boys to work hard to land a victory. Alger is working out at Cambridge and reports that he is in fine shape.

Finny Doyle, who meets Billy Edwards is working out with his brother Jack. Finny is going after the leading boys of his weight. A victory over Edwards will mean a big boost in Doyle's reputation. This week's show looks equally good as last week's performance. Boxing fans in Lowell are witnessing some of the best bouts in New England. Last week's exhibition between Mack and Wood could not be improved upon. The members appreciate the fact that the management is doing everything possible to give them a run for their money. Disappointments are apt to occur in the best of clubs. The work of a matchmaker is not the easiest job in the world. Those who will hurl challenges but will argue for hours over a few pounds in weight.

DIAMOND NOTES

Not a no-hit game was pitched in the major leagues in the 1913 playing season although there were nine contests in which the twirlers came within an ace of accomplishing the feat. Fromme and Suggs of the Cincinnati Reds, Pierce of the Chicago Cubs and Tyler of Boston were the National leaguers to turn this trick. In the American league Hamilton of St. Louis won two games on one-act margins. Mitchell of the Naps and Russell of the White Sox also winning by the same edge. The ninth one-hit contest went to Washington with Cashlon, Engel and Bentley on the hill.

One-hit games of the year in the big leagues follow:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

May 4: Fromme, Cincinnati, lost to Pittsburgh.
June 22: Pierce, Chicago, beat St. Louis (five innings).
Aug. 20: Suggs, Cincinnati, beat Boston.
Sept. 3: Tyler, Boston, beat New York.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

May 21: Hamilton, St. Louis, beat New York.
July 6: Mitchell, Cleveland, beat Chicago.
July 14: Russell, Chicago, beat Boston.
July 15: Hamilton, St. Louis, beat New York.
September 8: Cashlon-Engel-Bentley, Washington, beat New York.

The sudden desire for young blood which struck the major leagues about five years ago drove from the big circuit a lot of men who should be in the majors yet.

When Connie Mack produced a pennant winner by raising some colleges all the others followed his example in so far as securing youngsters is concerned. Mighty few succeeded in getting pennants with kids.

Old Tom Jones was relegated to the minors by Hugh Jennings, and Hughey has not found a man to take his place. In 10 games with Milwaukee this past season Jones hit for .348 and stole 12 bases, which is pretty fair for an old man.

Storor of Princeton is expected from the baseball players' fraternity will make interesting reading during the off season, but it is hardly likely that anything serious will develop. The unsigned players of both leagues have agreed not to sign until their demands or rather suggestions have been given a hearing, but there is no doubt that the magnates will listen to the players and that any reasonable suggestions they make will be adopted. The only hitch is likely to come over the question of who shall speak for the players, as the magnates profess to regard "Dave" Pultz as a case of walking delegate. They say that they will listen to the players, or a committee of the players, but do not care to recognize Pultz.

Clarke Griffith may not have won the American league pennant for the Washington stockholders, but to say that they are satisfied with his work is putting it mildly. When Griffith took hold of the Washington team he got what was considered the joke of the American league. It was a case of "Washington, first in war, first in peace, last in the American league." In the short time he has been directing the destinies of the Senators he has worked wonders. Last season he beat out the Athletics and finished second to the Red Sox. This year he again finished second and has a fine chance of repeating next season. The Washington club, as the result of Griffith's management, has been able to pay off all indebtedness and at the same time declare a 20 per cent. dividend.

Manager Fred Clark of the Pittsburgh Pirates hands the American league a fine compliment. Speaking of Year Greer, Cleveland twirler, whom the Pirates faced in a seven series, Clarke says, "The greatest pitcher we have ever faced—bar none."

Are baseball players improvident? Some followers of the game would answer in the affirmative and some in the negative and both could point to plenty of instances to back up their assertions. But if what the Athletics say as to what they plan to do with their share of the world's series receipts is any indication, members of the Philadelphia club are thrifty to the highest degree. Most of them say they intend to put the money into real estate, while Ira Thomas says that he proposes to build two more houses to add to the 34 that he now owns—Lawrence Sun.

graduate students in a body. The lower was presented to the university by the Cleveland Monument association.

The exercises were held in the quadrangle formed by the walls of the graduate college, a quarter of a mile southwest of the main campus.

President Hibben of Princeton presided and about him were former-President William H. Taft, who delivered the memorial address on Grover Cleveland, representatives of practically all the universities and colleges in the United States and Canada, hundreds of alumni and delegates from French, German and English universities.

Former President Taft's estimate of Grover Cleveland as expressed in his oration was as follows:

Taft's Address

"Mr. Cleveland was not a great lawyer, he was not a great economist, he was not a great orator, but he was a great president and a great man; and he was these because of the strong mind, clear intelligence and wide knowledge of affairs. He had the character, honesty, courage and sense of public duty which enabled him to meet great and critical issues without regard to personal consequences."

"When he left the White House the last time it would seem that the bitterness of the unity and open attack upon him by his former party was a humiliation hard to bear. But as years wore on in his dignified retirement, in the great benefit he wrought for this great university and in the wide influence for good he exercised in the country the whole public began to perceive with clearness the exceptional qualities of the man which had

The graduate college buildings include the Pynck tower which forms an entrance to the common portions of the college; the great hall used for dining purposes, breakfast rooms, common rooms, the quarters of the master of the college and the resident buildings of the students.

The Cleveland tower stands in the southeast corner of the quadrangle and is Gothic in style as are all the other buildings. The base of the tower is simple and without ornament, but it takes on a greater richness of treatment towards the top, which is an elaborate scheme of lace-like pinnacles worked out in stone. In the lower story of the tower is a great memorial chamber and opposite its entrance is a niche for a seated bronze statue of Grover Cleveland. Above the niche is Mr. Cleveland's famous dictum: "Public office is a public trust."

$600,000 GIFTS

Announced by President of M. I. T.—Names of Donors Secret

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—Anonymous gifts totaling $600,000 were announced yesterday by President R. C. McLaughlin of M. I. T. One bequest of $500,000 is to be added to the building fund of the institution, while another of $100,000 is bequeathed with no restrictions attached.

The names of the real donors are secret, and the new famous philanthropist, "Mr. Smith of Tech," is again brought into the limelight as the dispenser of millions, that will go to erect a suitable set of buildings for the institution.

Total of $3,150,000

The gifts of the "Mr. Smiths" were made before President McLaughlin sailed abroad for his summer vacation, and these, added to the amounts given by the other two mysterious members of Smith family, bring the total to $3,150,000.

President McLaughlin set apart a small portion of yesterday for the purpose of announcing the summer's gifts. The sum of $100,000 was given for the work carried on by the Electrical Research laboratory, the Speare bequest of $5000, from the will of Francis Bartlett named for the institution $100,000, which is restricted to the purchase of books, and lastly, it was announced that the alumni fund had passed the $500,000 mark.

MRS. PANKHURST

Greeted by Small Audience at Madison Square Garden

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—There was disappointment for Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant leader from London, who was released from Ellis Island on Monday, and signs of regret from the Madison Square Garden management when Mrs. Pankhurst stepped upon the stage of the garden last night to make her first public appearance here. The audience, in point of numbers, fell far below expectations.

Far up in the highest of the galleries, where the seats sold for 50 cents, there were few vacant spots to be seen. In the dollar seats on the tier below only a fraction of the chairs were taken. The $1.50 seats back of the boxes held only a straggling contingent, and only four of the boxes were occupied before Mrs. Pankhurst was introduced.

The main floor of the garden had been solidly paved with chairs in close rows offered at $2.50 and $3 each. The 32 seats directly in front of the platform were fairly well filled, but elsewhere on the floor there were perhaps three times as many empty chairs as there were occupied seats.

Instead of a crowd of "about 12,000," which members of the garden forces had said during the afternoon could be seated (some put it higher)—there were not more than 3000 persons in the great building. Many who have had experience in judging the size of audiences put the number at lower than 3000.

When Charles Edward Russell, the social candidate for mayor was in the middle of his speech introducing Mrs. Pankhurst he was interrupted by an uproar as the people far up near the roof began to shuffle down the steps to the 250 seats so that they would be sure of being near enough to the platform to hear the suffragist's voice.

Small checking accounts welcome and are appreciated. Old Lowell National Bank. Oldest bank in Lowell.

A sudden death occurred yesterday afternoon in the office of Dr. McCann in Central block, when Thomas Kelley, superintendent of the plush department of the Merrimack Mfg. Co., dropped dead, suffering from heart failure.

Mr. Kelley was not feeling well in the latter part of the afternoon and he went to Dr. McCann's office to be treated. He had no sooner entered the office than he dropped to the floor and in a few moments the body was removed to the home, 1141 Bridge street.

Deceased was well known in Lowell mill circles, having been in the employ of the Merrimack Mfg. Co. for years. He was a devoted member of the United Order of Workmen, and the Lowell Aerie of Eagles. He is survived by a wife and three children.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 22.—The most important conference of Congregationalists in a decade began here today when Moderator Nehemiah Boynton of Brooklyn called to order the 15th triennial session of the National Council of Congregational churches in the United States.

PROGRAM PARTY HELD

ENJOYABLE AFFAIR AT SPALDING HOUSE BY MOLLY VARNUM CHAPTER, D. A. R.

Members of the Molly Varnum Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, enjoyed "Program Day" which was observed at the Spalding House. The feature event was a lecture by Mr. Fitz-Henry Smith, Jr., of Boston on "The French in Boston Harbor." His lecture was of keen interest to the French, dealing as it did with the French fleet and fortification in Boston harbor at the time of the revolution.

The first account of French ships was given by Captain John Smith in his account of his first voyage to New England when he reported two French ships of 40 leagues to the westward of Monhegan. This was in 1614. A few years later a French ship was wrecked on Cape Cod and the company which was killed or made prisoners by the natives.

In 1623 word was received in Boston that the French had bought the plantation near Cape Sable. The colonists, conferring regarding the best course to be adopted, decided to build a fort at Nahant, but when the location proposed was viewed by the governor and council, it was declared too expensive. Today a fort marks the spot.

A Clear Complexion

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels which cause normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, yellow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headache, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women, as well as men, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then. Just to keep in the pink of condition.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel—the old-fashioned box. The Olive Tablet Co., Columbus, Ohio.
